Barnes Taking a Peek at the Colonel

ROOSEVELT IN 'ACTION' AGAIN AT LIBEL SUIT

By L. V. B. RUCKER.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 5.—When Colonel Theodore Roosevelt mounted the witness stand again today to make corrections in his testimony in the William Barnes' $50,000 libel suit against him, the end of the defence was in sight.

The colonel has only a few more witnesses and it is believed their examination will take only a little while. The defence has subpoenated for files for fifteen years back of the Albany Evening Journal, Barnes' newspaper, to show certain contentions regarding the Journal when it was "State Paper," but it was not thought likely that more than a few of the popers would be read.

The court room was packed today largely by women because it was assured that the Colonel again "would be in action."

While the Colonel was still going over the transcript of his testimony when court reconvened, Stewart Hancock offered more documentary evidence concerning the Albany Journal as "State paper."

GERMANS DRIVE BACK BRITISH AND RUSSIANS

By FREDERICK WERNER.
Special Correspondent International News Service.

BERLIN, May 5.—By wireless—Double victory for the German armies in the eastern ad western theatres of war is claimed in today's official report from the general staff.

Russian troops in the Carpathians and British troops at Ypres are in retreat, it asserts. The Russians are evacuating their positions at Dukla pass as a result of the defeat their forces have suffered in western Galicia.

The report states that the number of Russian prisoners taken in the western Galicia fighting has been increased to 30,000. The British forces at Ypres have suffered heavy losses, the report states.

Another marked success has been won against the French troops in the Ailly forest, southeast of St. Mihiel. The general staff reports that in the fighting there ten French officers and 750 men were captured. A French

JAPAN TO GIVE CHINA 48 HOURS TO BACK DOWN

PEKIN, May 5.—(10 p. m.)—Attaches of the Japanese legation are preparing to leave Pekin. Reports are in circulation tonight that Japan will begin war without any further diplomatic communications.

Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

TOKIO, May 5.—Japan's ultimatum to China is reported to have been drafted at the Foreign Office today. It is said to give the Pekin government forty-eight hours to accept the Japanese proposals.

The British Ambassador called on Foreign Minister Kato today and conferred with him for some time.

According to semi-official reports England is trying to induce Japan to make further concessions to China. The Tokio newspapers declare these efforts are useless as Japan cannot alter her attitude now without giving the impression at Pekin that it is afraid to make war.

Significant military movements are under way. Five division commanders called at the War Office today.

Chinese troops have been thrown about the Japanese and British legations in Pekin, according to dispatches, to guard against possible outbreaks.

The Chinese are said to be especially bitter against the British, believing they are backing the demands of the Japanese.

$250,000 PARIS SUIT AGAINST CLARK PARKER

A suit for $250,000 was filed in the Suffolk Superior Civil Court today on behalf of the Bank of France in Paris against Clark Parker, formerly of Winthrop, on the ground that Parker and another man defrauded the bank out of $47,672 in 1888. The bank adds expense money and interest to bring the total specified loss to $176,195.

Clark Parker, a man of international reputation, was left a $600,000 estate by the will of his brother, the late Benjamin W. Parker, molasses broker of Boston and New Orleans. A nephew of the testator, Professor Frederick P. Gay of the chair of pathology in the University of California, who was left $300, contested the will and lost. A Suffolk jury awarded the estate to Clark Parker last July.

La Banque de France, to use the native title of the bank now seeking to recover from Clark Parker, declares that he and "Art" Lyons of France "by means of a fraudulent trick" secured $47,672 from the bank and absconded with it.

The bank says that it spent $20,305 in searching for Parker and in other expenses. Interest on the original $47,672 from 1888 is set at $76,236 and on the $20,305 at $31,580.

During the will contest last July Parker and his wife lived in Winthrop. The bank now says that he cannot be found in this State for service of a writ.

D'ANNUNZIO A HERO, ON HIS WAY TO GENOA

By BRIXTON D'ALLAIRE.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

ROME, May 5.—Another cabinet meeting, the fifth in four days, was called today by Premier Salandra after a conference between Prince von Buelow, Germany's ambassador, and Signor Sonnino, Italian Foreign Minister.

When he returned to his villa from the Foreign Office, Prince von Buelow stated that the Austro-Italian negotiations were proceeding favorably.

Though there was deep interest in today's cabinet meeting, all eyes were turned toward the celebration at Quarto, where Gabriele D'Annunzio was expected to sound a call to arms.

D'Annunzio's journey to Quarto was that of a national hero, demonstrations being organized by the interventionists along the railway from Modena to Genoa. At Bardonecchia the entire garrison turned out and cheered as the train passed. The Turin station was thronged and a committee of women presented D'Annunzio with flowers.

At Genoa the poet received an imposing welcome in which officials of the city participated. More than 5,000 persons were gathered about the station when D'Annunzio arrived and they cheered for several minutes. A cab had been provided for the poet, but a body of students unhitched the horses and drew the vehicle through the streets. D'Annunzio expressed regret when informed that King Victor Emmanuel and his ministers would not attend the celebration.

"I am keenly disappointed," he said.

When asked what the nature of his oration would be he replied: "Merely a hymn of national harmony."

D'Annunzio Says Italy Will Join the Allies Today

PARIS, May 5.—Before leaving for the celebration at Quarto, Gabriele d'Annunzio wrote four sonnets glorifying France, which are published by Le Figaro today. With the sonnets the Italian poet sent a letter to Le Figaro's editor in which he said:

"The die is cast. You will receive great news from Genoa. On May 5 Italy and France will be allies."

Germans Sink 9 Trawlers in 7-Hour Raid

LONDON, May 5.—German submarines are waging a campaign of extermination against one of England's chief food supplies—the English fleets in the North Sea.

In operations lasting only seven hours on Monday, submarines sunk nine trawlers, seven from Hull and two from Grimsby.

The crews of all these boats, numbering eighty-two men, were rescued. They were given an opportunity to leave their vessels before the submarines opened fire. The crews of the Grimsby trawlers Rugby and Uxbridge, when landed today at Grimsby, said that though they had been taken aboard the submarine which sank their vessels they were unable to identify her, as the submarine's number had been painted out. They were hospitably treated, and when they again took to their small boats they were given some black bread by the Germans, who wished them "Good luck!"

The Hull trawlers sunk were the Hector, Progress, Coquette, Iolanthe, Hero, Northward Ho and Bob White. Earlier reports had stated that the Iolanthe, Hero and Northward Ho were sunk today.

MRS. CARMAN CONFRONTED BY NEW EVIDENCE

By ROBERT C. CRANSTON.
Special Correspondent International News Service.

MINEOLA, N. Y., May 5.—Confident that the twelve "blue-eyed" men selected by her to render a verdict at her trial on the charge of killing Mrs. Louise D. Bailey in her husband's office on June 30 last, would acquit her, Mrs. Florence C. Carman was apparently the most unconcerned person in the court room when the trial opened today and the prosecution presented evidence to show that the killing of Mrs. Bailey was premeditated.

The ringing words of District Attorney Smith in his address to the jury accusing Mrs. Carman of "deliberate and premeditated murder planned with care, with jealousy and suspicion of her husband's relations with his women patients as her motive," failed to perturb the defendant.

Was Mrs. Bailey a victim of mistaken identity? Was there a woman known to Dr. Carman as "Hazel Eyes," and who caused the person who fired the shot to become "maddened by jealousy"? Did Mrs. Florence Conklin Carman, the physician's good-looking wife, know the existence of "Hazel Eyes"?

TO HOLD EVENING SESSIONS

The district attorney will try to find answers to these questions.

None of the nervousness and hysteria which marked Mrs. Carman's demeanor at the first trial were in evidence. She was the predominating figure in the selection of the jury which she believes will give her freedom, and is in constant consultation with her counsel.

Justice Blackmar will not permit the

CONSUL SUICIDE STORY MYSTERY

NAPLES, May 5.—The captain of liner Sant'Anna reported upon arrival here today that the United States consul at Lyons, France, who was a passenger upon the ship, jumped overboard and was drowned on the second day out from New York. The consul was on his way to his post.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The State Department today cabled to Rome and Marseilles for information concerning the reported suicide on the steamer Sant'Anna of a man who represented himself to be the American consul at Lyon, France.

A dispatch from Naples said the captain of the ship reported a passenger named Wedell, who said he was the American consul at Lyon, had leaped overboard shortly after the steamer left New York for Marseilles.

Frederick Van Dyne is American consul at Lyon. He, with Mrs. Van Dyne, was on the steamer. He recently suffered a nervous breakdown.

His son, Frederick Van Dyne, Jr., in this city, today called at the consular bureau for word of his father's whereabouts. The bureau is in doubt as to the identity of the reported suicide. Inquiry also is being made as to whether Alexander Weddell, consul general to Athens, Greece, may have been aboard the ship.

Outdoor Drama on Anderson Estate

A beautiful outdoor spectacle composed by members, called "The Strife of the Sea Children and the Tree Children of the Earth Child," and to be presented on the estate of Mr. Larz Anderson in Brookline June 12, will mark the close of the sixth year of the American Drama Society, Inc.

At the annual meeting of the society the following officers were elected: President, Miss Charlotte Porter; vice-presidents, H. Addington Bruce, Dr. Alfred G. [illegible], Thomas A. Watson, Robert A. Woods; treasurer, Alfred R. Shrigley; secretary, Miss Katherine Freeman, corresponding secretary, [illegible] Hatch.

Taft Likes Root as Next President

CHICAGO, May 5.—William Howard Taft passed through Chicago today on his way to Madison, Wis., where he is to speak at the University of Wisconsin.

"The suggestion of Elihu Root as a presidential possibility pleases me very much," said the former President in an interview. "You would like to ask me about the Roosevelt-Barnes trial," he said. "Well, just keep on asking me about it."

"Do you think the Republicans will elect the next President, and will it be a three-cornered race?" asked another.

"I'm only a humdrum college professor," he answered.

Melrose Astir Over Stork, but It Was Stuffed

All hats off!
The stork has come
The stork is stuffed—
Nobody Home."

Melrose went to work with a grin today about the stork.

Down Messengers River through Melrose a stork came floating. Spectators became violently interested. Sportsmen wished they had a gun. Ornithologists wondered what a stork was doing in that neighborhood—unless it had escaped from the aviary at Franklin Park Zoo.

But people also chattered about the old-world legend of the stork bringing the babies to people's homes.

Lots of merry talk. Where was the stork bound? Why did he come by the river? Where was Friend Baby? Twins, maybe, who knows?

Business of one neighbor quizzing another. Excitement among the doctors.

Finally some boys brought the stork ashore. All off—no babies—no cause for excitement—no rush for doctors.

The stork was a stuffed one.

Later a Melrose merchant said the stuffed bird must have been taken from his show window.

PHI BETA KAPPA DEGREE AT TUFTS

The Phi Beta Kappa initiation at Tufts College will be held this evening in Goddard Chapel. Five undergraduates will receive the honorary degree, two men from Tufts and three women from Jackson College. The initiates will be Miss Ruth Wallis '15, Fall River; Miss Ethel L. Peabody, '16, West Somerville; Miss Eleanor Bisbee, '15, Arlington Heights; Wilfred F. Keller, '15, Roxbury; Henry E. Priest, '15, Irasburg, Vt.

Miss Wallis is a member of the Chi Omega sorority, and will represent Jackson College on the commencement day platform. Miss Bisbee is one of the leading athletes in Jackson, having won her letter several times. She has held the tennis championship for two years. Miss Peabody is a member of the Sigma Kappa sorority.

Mr. Keller is a member of the varsity debating team and the National Federation of Commons Clubs. Mr. Priest will represent the School of Liberal Arts on commencement day, and is a member of the Zeta Psi fraternity.

Sunday Will Play Ball to Aid Poor

PATERSON, N. J., May 5.—The Rev. Billy Sunday will play centre field with the ministers of Paterson and vicinity Monday afternoon in a ball game between the ministers and the newspaper men. The game will be played on the Paterson Atlantic League grounds and the proceeds will go to the poor of Paterson.

"You must have eyes in the back of your head and brains in your feet if you can't see that God is moving upon New Jersey at the present time as he never moved in America since the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock," cried Billy Sunday to 9,500 persons who braved the rainstorm to come to the tabernacle and hear him preach on the subject, "Let Your Light Shine." He flayed the people for failure to spread the gospel and said: "It is up to you to work for the Lord just as it is my work.

"Any man who says that I'm a grafter and not sincere, is a dirty, malicious, black-hearted liar. If you came here and dumped all the money in your bank vaults in the sawdust down here in front of the pulpit, I'd preach Jesus Christ just the same."

He said all the powers were interested in the campaign, "heaven to save, earth to cheat and hell to damn." Three hundred and ninety-four "hit the trail."

A similar rule applies to the other four series.

BRITISH BREAK GERMAN ATTACK

By International News Service.

PARIS, May 5.—Another check for the Germans in West Flanders is reported in an official communique issued by the French War Office today.

The battle of Ypres continues, with heavily reinforced German legions being hurled against the British positions in front of Ypres.

An attack delivered by the Germans against the British lines last night broke down with heavy losses, it is stated by the War Office. After the German attack had been repulsed they were taken upon the flank by violent fire from French guns, which had been rushed up to support the English lines.

The Germans as they fell back suffered serious losses.

Preparations are being made by the Germans for a grand assault against the British and French troops defending Ypres.

POUR TROOPS INTO BELGIUM.

The German general staff is pouring troops into Belgium and great quantities of artillery are being massed on the West Flanders front. Six troop trains bearing first line soldiers passed through Antwerp in the direction of Dixmude on Tuesday.

On Sunday 15,000 Germans who had been in training in the Hasselt district of Belgium were moved westward toward the Dixmude-Ypres front.

Railway lines running from Germany into Belgium are glutted with troop trains and endless processions of cars bearing artillery, ammunition and provisions.

The indications are that the Germans have decided to try another device against the cavalry, first delivering a series of smashing blows against the Ypres and Dixmude fronts.

NEW BRITISH LINE.

That the British have abandoned any idea of trying to retake their lost positions in West Flanders and northeast of Ypres is shown by the British official announcement that the line has been reformed westward of the territory to the Germans. The new British line which now lies west of Zonnebeke is being strongly fortified.

Zonnebeke is about four miles northeast of Ypres and two miles southeast of St. Julien.

The Germans have taken up strong positions on elevated points dominating Zonnebeke, where they have mounted artillery to sweep the towns.

The importance of the capture of Zonnebeke and four other positions in West Flanders by the Germans is minimized by British military experts.

The ferocity of the fighting and the severity of the losses inflicted upon the Germans is shown by the uninterrupted convoys and trains of vans and automobiles carrying German wounded into Courtrai, Bruges, Antwerp and Brussels, according to Amsterdam dispatches. Terrific fighting is reported in progress near Zillebeke. Nearly every building in Bruges has been turned into a hospital and so much food is required for the German reinforcements pouring into that region that two-thirds of the civil population are starving.

Sir William Gowers, Neurologist, Dead

Maclaurin at Presentation of Edison Medal

President Richard C. Maclaurin of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology will be the only Boston speaker at the presentation of the Civic Forum medal of honor to Thomas A. Edison, a ceremony that will take place tomorrow evening in Carnegie Hall, New York.

The medal was instituted last year, Colonel George W. Goethals being the first recipient. It is awarded annually "for distinguished public service," with public exercises. These will include an address by the chairman of the meeting, President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University; a poem by Percy MacKaye, other addresses by John F. Ford, former Governor of New Jersey; Commander G. Marconi, Charles A. Coffin of the General Electric Company, Dr. Charles R. Steinmetz, and that of President Maclaurin, who from his previous training in physics, of which he was professor at Columbia, will be at home in a gathering of electrical experts. The medal will be presented by President Butler.

50,000 Landing in Dardanelles

LONDON, May 5.—Fifty thousand more allied troops are reported on transports ready to land on the Gallipoli peninsula, where fully 100,000 are already pushing their way into the interior.

The Australasians are said today to be consolidating their positions following the severe defeat administered to the Turks after the hardest kind of fighting, in which the Turks attacked in mass, after the German fashion, but were repulsed with great losses and driven out of their positions.

The new landing being effected is on the Aegean shore of the peninsula, London hears.

No confirmation comes of the report that the Vali of Smyrna was negotiating with the allies for the surrender of the city.

30,000 RUSSIANS TAKEN PRISONERS

attack in Priest Wald (Le Pretre forest) was repulsed.

The correspondent of the Tageblatt telegraphed that the Russians' southern wing has been crushed on a front of twenty-two miles.

"Our advance is everywhere victorious," he adds. "We have captured Gorlice and are still pressing on."

Gorlice is twentyone miles east of the Dunajec River, from which the Austro-German forces started their offensive. They have crossed the Biala and reached the Ropa, according to the Tageblatt's correspondent.

"The attack of our forces was so determined," continues the correspondent, that the Russians were compelled to abandon their first lines as well as the villages back of the front which they had used as quarters.

"They were rapidly driven back to Gorlice, which was the only point where the Russians made a determined stand. This was in vain. An artillery bombardment destroyed the town and it was captured by the Germans after a violent fight in the ruins.

"At Gorlice one entire Russian division was practically annihilated. All the staff officers, including several generals, were killed or wounded.

"The Russian soldiers were very poorly equipped and complained when taken prisoners that they had lacked for food. Most of the prisoners wore military caps, but civilian clothing."

RUSSIANS CLAIM 3 GERMAN DRIVES HAVE BEEN CHECKED

By FRANCIS LAVELLE MURRAY,

Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PETROGRAD, May 5.—The German armies have launched energetic offensive movements at four different points on the long battlefront in the eastern theatre of war it was admitted officially here today, but the War Office asserted that three of these had already been checked. The fourth, that in western Galicia, has precipitated a great battle on the eastern bank of the Dunajec River.

The outpost skirmishes in this conflict began a week ago, but the main forces did not come into contact until Sunday. The battle has been raging violently since that day with alternate success for the Austro-Germans and Russians.

The three points where the Russians claim to have checked Austro-German drives are in the Baltic provinces of Kourland and Kovo, on the Nida River in southwestern Poland, and in the Stryj region of the Carpathians east of Uszok Pass.

The offensive on the Nida may be regarded as part of the western Galicia campaign, according to dispatches received today from Lemberg, these stating that the Austro-German left wing lies along the Nida, the centre on the west bank of the Dunajec, west of Tarnow and the right wing on the Dunajec's bank south of Tarnow.

The War Office states that every effort of the enemy to cross the Nida River has been repulsed, the Germans there suffering heavy losses. While admitting that the Teutonic allies have crossed the Dunajec, officials of the War Office assert that this movement met with but slight opposition, as the Russians had picked the ground for the main test of strength east of the Dunajec. On ridges between the Dunajec and the Biala the Russians occupied positions of great strategic value and the Austro-German forces are at a serious disadvantage.

This became manifest when they attempted to cross the Biala at Tushow after advancing eastward from the Dunajec. The Russian guns mounted on hill No. 535 inflicted heavy losses upon the enemy, compelling them to abandon their efforts until reinforcements could be brought up.

British Pastors Form War Corps

GLASGOW, May 5—Muscular Christianity stands enlisted today for the period of the war in a special clergymen's corps.

Most of the pastors of the city joined the corps and took their first lesson in musketry. They will be attached to the citizens' training corps.

CALLS VICTORY OF THE GERMANS MINOR SUCCESS

By J. L. GARVIN.

Editor of the Pall Mall Gazette.

LONDON, May 5.—It is fairly certain that the Berlin bulletin claiming to have smashed the Russian front in the mountain and hill country fifty miles east of Cracow will turn out to be grossly exaggerated.

The Russians obviously have been pushed back a certain distance, but relative to the scale of the conflict and the character of the region fought over, nothing very serious happened.

The Austrian reports are vague and dubious and they cannot simulate the artificial raptures of Berlin. For some weeks it has been known that the Germans have been planning to break through the Russian positions in the Carpathians and along the upper Vistula.

If the Germans and Austrians could win even twenty miles forward they would threaten the Russian connections with Dukla Pass and might next imperil all the Russians have gained on the Hungarian side of the Carpathians.

RUSSIANS STAGGERED.

At the same time the Russians in Central Poland, outflanked from the South, will be compelled to retire considerably.

Everything was done in the hope of confusing the Russians along the whole front of some 700 miles.

On Saturday the real blow fell with great weight and the Russians staggered under it, much as the allies did at Ypres.

General Von Mackensen drove forward on a fairly wide front across the Dunajec and the Bialla. This sounds alarming, considering how few and wide apart are the roads and how precarious are the connections between them.

ONLY MINOR SUCCESS.

The Viennese statement which is not to be suspected of putting things too low, can only claim 8,000 Russians captured. That is a minor fact, indeed, but considering what conditions prevail on the front, it is a fairly sure indication that Berlin is cock-a-doodling over a minor success and that Von Mackensen's attempted sweep has failed to secure the results expected of it.

If the Russian front has been partly broken it will soon be reformed. It is not certain, however, that the Russian front has been broken at all. Neither Berlin nor Vienna claims that Arnow, Cieskowice or Gerlice have been taken. As to the second place, strong Austrian forces were stopped and compelled to entrench some 600 paces in front of the Russian lines.

WIFE REFUSES TO PROSECUTE COE

Mrs. Harry Clark Coe, Jr., declared today that she would refuse to be a party to any criminal prosecution of her husband, the Standard Oil salesman, who announced from Fairbanks, Alaska, that he would never return to Boston, and that the reason that he had mysteriously run away was that his home life was unhappy and is wife extravagant.

"I will refuse, absolutely and unequivocally, to have anything to do with the prosecution of my husband. If he is the author of the statements said to have been made by him, he knows only too well, far better than any one else, the falsity of them." It was in these words that Mrs. Coe declared that, as far as she was concerned, whether Coe remained in Alaska or returned to Boston rested with himself.

WIFE IS STILL LOYAL.

It is significant, however, that Detective Burns, whose agents are now in Alaska with Coe, announced to Mrs. Coe that his work on the case had not ended with finding the missing Standard Oil salesman. The detective, however, would offer no explanation for the statement.

"I have not communicated with my husband," Mrs. Coe said, "either by telegraph or by letter. I do not intend to do so until I have heard from him, directly. It is impossible for me to join him in Alaska because my health is none too good, and it would be inadvisable for me to subject my baby, June, only six weeks old, to the rigors of an Alaskan journey."

Although she is on the verge of a collapse, she remains loyal to her missing husband, refusing to believe that the statements credited to him are authentic.

MAY GET GOLD FEVER.

More detailed reports from Alaska contain the information that Coe is in Lovana, just outside Fairbanks. Within forty miles from Lovana, the richest gold strike in years has been made, and a general stampede from all over Alaska is taking place.

It is expected, by friends of Coe, that the youth will join the stampede and make a try at mining. If Coe "stampedes," however, he will be accompanied by the Burns detective in Fairbanks.

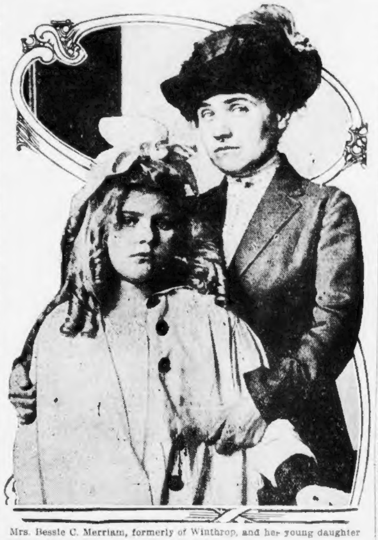
On account of the attitude of Mrs. Coe in regard to prosecution of Coe for desertion, it is not expected that District-Attorney Pelletier will ask for the man's extradition on that charge. He announced, about two years ago, and has frequently repeated, that he would pursue wife-deserters to any part of the country, and make every effort to extradite them for punishment.

Magrane-Houston Hold Costume Whist

Over 300 members of the Magrane-Houston Co-operative Association and their friends attended the annual May social of the organization in Catholic Union Hall. The event took the form of a costume and whist party. Miss Annie Trainer won first prize for the most unusual and original costume.

Wife Ends Merriam Fight

Accepts a Divorce Decree



Mrs. Bessie C. Merriam, formerly of Winthrop, and her young daughter

Mrs. Bessie C. Merriam, who formerly lived in Winthrop, has given up her long legal contest with her husband, Captain Henry C. Merriam, United States Army, and will accept a decree of divorce on the charge of desertion, San Francisco dispatches today announce.

Captain Merriam recently was denied a petition for divorce and his attorneys were preparing an appeal.

Only a short time ago Mrs. Merriam declared:

"My name must be cleared, and the disgrace of this affair lifted from the name of my little daughter. It has gone too far for any reconciliation. I have waited for two long years for this opportunity to vindicate myself. The disgrace is too horrible for me to think of any compromise."

The Merriam case aroused interest throughout the country and especially in army circles, when the captain made allegations against his wife, to contradict which Colonel Clarence Murphy, named in the case, traveled 7,000 miles from Paris.

Captain Merriam's most serious charges were that Mrs. Merriam tried to kill him, and allegations were made that she also tried to poison their child.

Captain Merriam was well known at Fort Warren, and other artillery stations. In 1897 he was stationed at Fort Revere, and it was a year later that he married his wife secretly at Alexandria, Va. The marriage was kept secret until 1911, when a public ceremony was performed in Manila, where the captain had been ordered.

Prominent Lawyers to Take Part in Mock Trial at City Club

A big gathering of professional men is expected to attend the mock trial Thursday night at Boston City Club of "Jim" Rollins and "Louie" Newhall, charged with "graft in connection with the building." The indictment contains "57 varieties" of counts.

Robert O. Harris will be the presiding judge, and Joseph C. Pelletier, clerk of court. Counsel for the prosecution will be Herbert Parker, John L. Bates, Louis C. Southard and Louis A. Frothingham. "Jim" and "Louie" will be represented by Samuel J. Elder, Solomon Lewenberg, George L. Barnes and Guy A. Ham. Edmund Billings will be foreman of the jury, Edward C. Graves, chief of police, and Samuel F. Hubbard, sheriff.

Parents Bar Knife, Twins Quit Hospital

Mr. and Mrs. George R. Gibb of Holyoke have taken their three-year-old "Siamese" twin daughters back home from the Children's Hospital in Boston. The twins were to have been cut apart, but the parents refused to allow the operation to be performed in the presence of a large gallery of professional spectators, it was said at the hospital today.

Women Voters Keep Nevada Bars Open

RENO, Nev., May 5.—Women voters of Nevada exercising for the first time their right to ballot on the liquor question, threw enough of their support to the side of the saloon owners to defeat an attempt to reduce the number of Reno's saloons from eighty to forty. Returns from yesterday's election show a large majority for the saloon element.

AWTUCKET MAN'S SKULL FRACTURED

AWTUCKET, R. I., May 5.—Rob- Nuttall died today at the Memorial spital of a fractured skull as a re- lt of a mysterious occurrence early lay. The police are at work on the se.

Nuttall, who was thirty-two, with a fe and baby, was employed as a aver at the Seekonk lace factory. venty weeks ago there was a strike ere; but the owners put in new men d the factory has kept open. At dnight the night shift knocked off r lunch, Nuttall among them. Re- rning to the factory shortly before o'clock, workmen found Nuttall ly- g unconscious at the corner of New- rt avenue and Brooks street.

They summoned the police, who tought Nuttall had had a fall and ok him to his home at No. 45 Bloom- dale street. The Rev. John L. heeler, who has had medical train- g, came in and found the man had fractured skull.

Harvard Inquiry on Food Supply of the Students

Harvard has undertaken to inspect the entire food supply of its students, and under the direction of Dr. Roger I. Lee, head of the department of hygiene, and J. W. M. Bunker, instructor in sanitary analysis, the elusive typhoid bacillus and kindred evildoers are being hotly pursued through Harvard's classic halls.

Milk, butter and cream at Memorial Hall, Foxcroft, the freshman dining hall, and Stillman Infirmary are inspected weekly, and the inspection is being extended to the Varsity Club, the large private clubs and everywhere else where students habitually are fed.

DORCHESTER MAN KILLED IN CRASH

Edward A. Adams of No. [illegible] Fuller street, Dorchester, salesman for a local automobile company, was killed in an automobile accident early today near Thornton's Ferry, N. H.

Mrs. Bertha [illegible], wife of a Nashua laundryman, who was in the car with him, was seriously injured and is at St. Joseph's Hospital, Nashua. Passersby found the wrecked car with Adams' body beneath it and the woman unconscious under the tonneau. The car had veered off the road and gone over a culvert, hitting a tree.

Adams was the son of Edward F. Adams of Boston, was twenty-three years old, and had been prominent in athletics at the Dorchester and Boston Latin High schools. Mr. Adams, the father, said:

"My boy came home to supper earlier than usual last night, and left soon after saying he and four other salesmen were taking new cars to Manchester. He asked me to go with him, but I was unable to do so."

Jitney Busy in Waltham and Watertown

Waltham and Watertown saw a jitney bus go into operation today. The bus, carrying fourteen passengers at a trip, ran from Watertown square to Banks square, Waltham, every half hour.

The trip required twelve minutes or half the time taken by a street car for the same distance.

The jitney started right out carrying more passengers than the electric cars.

Yesterday the bus carried 158 passengers to the Waltham Watch Company's plant from Waltham. Attorney Daniel L. [illegible] heads the Waltham Auto Bus Company, and he says more jitneys will appear if the demand warrants it.

The Watertown Selectmen granted a temporary license to the jitney bus today. Action will later be taken as to allowing the license to become permanent.

SOUTH GETS VIEWS OF W. R. HEARST

(From the New Orleans Times-Picayune of April 26.)

That the Wilson peace policy has served to strengthen the Democratic administration is the view William Randolph Hearst takes of the situation.

Mr. Hearst, while drawing the conclusion that the Wilson regime was not altogether a success, is firmly of the opinion that the peace policy has caused the people to forget some of what he calls the administration's earlier deficiencies.

Mr. Hearst, who is a prominent newspaper publisher with a chain of papers reaching from New York to the Pacific coast and whose activities in reforms have brought him into the great political arena as candidate for important offices, spent Sunday in New Orleans at the St. Charles Hotel.

WILL RENAME WILSON.

Accompanied by his wife and a party of friends, Mr. Hearst is on his way back to New York from a three months' visit in California. The party arrived Sunday morning on the Frisco-Santa Fe and left Sunday night for Atlanta, where Mr. Hearst probably will spend a week looking over his newspaper interests in the Gate City.

"I think Mr. Wilson will of course be renominated by the Democratic party," Mr. Hearst said after expressing his views about the administration's peace policy, "that is, if he wants the renomination. It is always the custom of the convention to decide to renominate the man in the office and generally the custom of the man in office is to want the renomination. That is the way I figure it out.

"You don't hear so much of the Bull Moose as a party today, but the proportion of Progressives in the Republican ranks are as large as ever it was, perhaps larger.

"The Republican party is sailing along easily now, merely opposing the Democratic, but as it reaches the point where it must declare its principles and nominate a candidate for the presidency, either progressive or reactionary, it will enter upon a period of greater difficulty. I am of the opinion that the Progressives in the Republican party are very sincere and think more of principle than of party. I don't believe they can be herded or stampeded into voting for a reactionary.

"There lies the real difficulty for the party, for the old line Republicans may try to find the opportunity to nominate a candidate representing the reactionaries and the Progressives in the ranks will hardly submit to this.

TOO MANY THEORIES.

"There has been a great deal of social unrest with the terrific problem of the unemployed all over the country of late, but I think that while some of these disturbances were due to a business ignorance upon the part of our legislators, others were in a measure necessary in the enacting of proper reforms. There are too many theories being tried out on the country."

Mr. Hearst said that he had no liking for politics, save from the point of a newspaper man whose true mission it should be to keep in close touch with the general situation to better conserve the interests of the people through the influence of his paper.

"I have no intention of entering the newspaper field in New Orleans," the publisher informed his interviewers, "as I believe I have a sufficient number of papers as it is. I was very much interested in the consolidation of the Times-Democrat and Picayune, and thought the move a very wise one. It has resulted, I think, in a stronger and better paper."

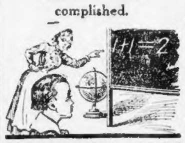
Curing Catarrh is A Simple Method

Go to its Source and the Cure Is Then Accomplished.



Only those who have used S. S. S. for the blood know that catarrh is simply a blood trouble.

Most people, uninstructed in this membraneous disease, treat their nose and throat as if catarrh was a local trouble. It is not so. To treat catarrh it is necessary to go into the stomach, the liver, the lungs, the kidneys and all the vital organs of the body. And it is S. S. S. that at once enters the entire blood circulation, all the organs of the body, all the mucous surfaces and becomes a dominant factor for renewed health. It is a simple method when you figure it out. Catarrh is plainly an inflammation of the mucous membranes.

And there is in S. S. S. certain ingredients which cause these mucous surfaces to change or convert the secretions into a substance for easy elimination. A special book on this subject will be mailed to all who write to The Swift Specific Co., 110 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

Catarrh is very often the result of some other blood trouble, some germ that gets into the blood and multiplies beyond the control of nature.

S. S. S. is the remedy. Do not accept a substitute for this matchless remedy. Read the circular wrapped around the bottle. It is important.

GROUND FOR NEW CHURCH BROKEN

Ground was broken at 8 a. m. today for the new Church of St. Ambrose at the corner of Adams and Dickens streets, Dorchester, for the "baby parish" of Dorchester. This will be the tenth Catholic church in Dorchester.

The Rev. John H. Harrigan turned the first shovel of sod with a silver spade presented by Michael McDermott of Charles street. Building Commissioner Patrick O'Hearn turned the second and Mr. McDermott, Superintendent Philip Reagan of the Dorchester postoffice; Patrick H. Mullen, Secretary John A. Dailey of the Dorchester Board of Trade and many others of the 1,500 present took a hand. When the exercises were finished a good start had been made on the cellar excavation, and Contractor John F. Griffin and his men then set to work.

Before the exercises, mass was said at the chapel at Field's Corner. The congregation marched to the site of the new church. The ground was blessed by Father Harrigan.

The church will be of brick with granite trimmings, but for the present only the basement will be completed and roofed. The auditorium in the basement will seat about 900. At present the parish services are held in a building at Field's Corner, and in a structure on the church site.

The basement construction is to be completed by October 1.

MRS. DAVIS WORKS ON NEW PLAY HERE

Ruth Helen Davis, the dramatist, and Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox, the popular writer, are working together in Boston upon an allegorical play, called "The Victory," in three acts.

In the play there is much dialogue in verse, which portrays the conflict of selfishness with unselfishness. John Philip Sousa is preparing the songs for it.

"I am quite sure this play will bring to light a feature of allegory which will be very popular," said Mrs. Davis.

"It is so much out of the ordinary and so clearly containing a helpful lesson that it will win from the side of being interesting as well as being suggestive of the best interests of people. It will be so given that this style of play with its many features will create a new demand.

"I have also translated from Francois Coppee 'The Guilty Man,' which has been accepted by 'Al' Woods of New York for which he has already paid me for advanced copy without detail the sum of $1,000. I am also translating five other works which I hope later on to weave into plays.

"This play which I am now working on with Mrs. Wilcox will be one of the most entertaining of its kind. It will have much in it, which will combine the real with the mystical."

MYSTERY IN DEATH OF BANKER GOSS

DOVER, N. H., May 5.—The entire State is shocked by the announcement that Colonel Charles Carpenter Goss, one of the most prominent bankers in the State, connected with three important banks in Dover and Pittsfield, N. H., committed suicide just after the State bank examiners started the customary examination of the Merchants Savings Bank of Dover, N. H., of which he was treasurer.

The suicide had been kept secret until yesterday. The fact that Colonel Goss was dead had been announced, but it had been announced as "heart failure." The first authentic statement that death was suicide came from Medical Referee Walter J. Roberts of Rochester, N. H., who admitted that Colonel Goss had cut his throat with a knife.

His relatives claim there is no plausible reason for his ending his life. They say his accounts at the bank are in perfect condition. In this particular, Bank Examiner S. A. Thompkins refuses to make any statement until he has completed the examination commenced last Saturday.

Colonel Goss, it became known finally, was found in the cellar of his home Monday morning. He had just returned from a visit to the bank. The weapon, a pocket-knife, was found near the body.

The examination of the Merchants Savings Bank had been advertised in the papers. The "ad" was the usual notice to depositors to bring in their deposit books for inspection and for the purpose of checking back the bank's accounts.

This notice announced that Examiner Thompkins would be at the bank May 1 and for succeeding days till June 1 to conduct this examination. He had called Saturday and prepared for the detailed examination of the depositors' pass books.

Monday this examination continued. As far as can be learned at the bank, there was no conference with the examiner when the Colonel paid his morning visit to the bank. He stayed in his office but a short time and then went home. Within an hour he had been found in the cellar.

A careful search of his personal effects by his relatives has revealed, they declare, no reason for his suicide, and has uncovered no note or farewell message.

Colonel Goss came from a well-known family of bankers. When he graduated from Dartmouth in '93 he went to work in Boston at the Shawmut National Bank.

He was called to Pittsfield, N. H., while an employe of the Shawmut, by the death of his father. He stayed there to assume the position held by his father at the head of the Pittsfield, N. H., National Bank.

In 1900 he came to Dover and organized the Merchants National Bank, of which he had been cashier and treasurer for fourteen years. In 1901 he organized the Merchants Savings Bank, in which he was treasurer and trustee. He was also president of the Lothrop Farnham Company and a director in the New Boston Railroad.

He was married in June, 1895, to Miss Winifred Lane. He had one son, Charles Lane Carpenter Goss, born February 24, 1903. The boy and his mother were in the house at the time of the death. They called on Colonel Goss' brother to take charge of the funeral arrangements.

Colonel Goss was reputed to be wealthy, inheriting much of the Carpenter wealth as well as the Goss fortune. He was prominent in the Dover Congregational Church.

Benefit Reunion of Letter Carriers

The annual reunion of the Boston Letter Carriers' Mutual Benefit Association, which will be held in Mechanics building Wednesday evening, May 19, will mark the twenty-sixth anniversary of the association and will no doubt recall to the memory of many of the older men in the service the days of trial of the little group of men who created the society, which has since won praise and encouragement from the local officials of the Postoffice Department, and even from Washington itself.

BLIND GIRL TO BE COWBOY'S BRIDE

"Cupid will win in the end," said May Elena Smith today. "We will be married Saturday."

Miss Smith, twenty-two, has been blind since birth. Yesterday, [illegible] James H. Lee Malcolm of Boston, who applied to the Probate Court for a license to wed immediately, without waiting for the five-day limit to expire. The court refused the petition.

"But we shall be married when the time is up," said Miss Smith today. "Two days more is all we have to wait—then I shall become Mrs. Malcolm. Many have objected to our marrying, but Cupid will win in the end.

"The Rev. Mr. Johnson will perform the ceremony and we will be married in the Warren Avenue Baptist Church."

Permission for immediate marriage was asked on the ground that the girl is blind and dependent on the care of others, that her father is seriously ill and that distant relatives are assuming control of his property during his illness. The court refused permission on the ground that Miss Smith has an aunt who can care for her temporarily.

"Mr. Malcolm came from the West last September," said Miss Smith. "He is a native of Oklahoma, and has been a cowboy most of his life.

"Since he came to Boston he has become very near to me. His kindness has won my love, and I am content to place my future in his hands, believing he will care for me notwithstanding my affliction.

"It was not only his care and affection that I desired, but it was also on account of my father's illness that I wished an immediate wedding. My father is ill at the City Hospital and he wished to see me happy before he died, and asked that we be married at once.

"Of course we were disappointed at the court's refusal, but since we must wait we are content."

Miss Smith was born in Conway, N. H. Her counsel is James Adams Colby of No. 73 Tremont street. Her father is John B. Smith, a Canadian. Her mother, a native of Maine, died ten years ago.

Tinkham No-Fee Bill Is Signed

Governor Walsh has signed the Tinkham bill which prevents officers and directors of trust companies from accepting fees, commissions and other gratuities from the companies in which they hold office.

The purpose of the new law is to prevent the directors from sharing in commissions which are paid to them solely because they have "influence" in the company. The new law become effective June 2. The bill, based on the national law, provides that no officer or director shall be paid a fee except for services actually rendered. Violation of the law is punishable by a fine as high as $5,000 and by imprisonment for a year.

AN EASY WAY TO REDUCE FLESH.
BY TAKING PHY-THY-RIN.

Haven't you often wished for a medicine to reduce your flesh? Something that does not require dieting or calisthenics? Well, right here you have it in 5-grain Phy-thy-rin tablets, which you may secure at any first-class drug store. These are pleasant to take, perfectly harmless and cause no restrictions of habits of eating, and reduce the flesh little by little until you are down to the number of pounds you wish to weigh. Too much flesh is undesirable, as most quite stout people will readily admit, and it detracts from one's good appearance, makes one clumsy and short of breath.

There isn't any reason why anyone should be too stout, when there's this much tried, perfectly satisfactory remedy at your druggist's. Phy-thy-rin tablets (don't forget the name) are recommended by physicians and are guaranteed to be perfectly harmless.—Advertisement.

THIN, RUN DOWN MEN AND WOMEN

GAIN IN WEIGHT FROM TEN TO FORTY POUNDS

Sargol, The Flesh Builder, Gives New Life, New Strength, New Vitality and Puts Firm, Healthy, Stay-There Flesh On People Who Are Underweight

When I started taking Sargol I weighed 129 pounds. Now I weigh 156, says J. G. Wilson. It put new life in every nerve. H. A. McCullars reports he gained 25 pounds and his health was made perfect, sleeps better and feels better than for 30 years. Miss Maud Smith reports a gain of 10 pounds and still gaining. Health greatly improved.

When these and hundreds of other once thin, underweight people write to say that as soon as they began to make Sargol a part of their meals they began to get fat, don't you think that there must be something in this widely advertised method of flesh building after all?

Don't you think you ought to try it, particularly as leading druggists everywhere sell it with the positive guarantee that unless it makes an increase in your weight you can have your money back?

You may say, "I am naturally thin. Nothing can make me fat," but until you have tried Sargol you do not and cannot know that this is true.

Thin folks say this no matter what or how much they eat, and they begin to think food has nothing to do with flesh making. But they are wrong.

Thin people stay thin because the fats, oils, starches, sugars and other flesh and fat-making elements in their food are mostly passing out of their bodies as waste. Only enough nourishment is retained to keep the body going. Nothing is used for flesh making.

Sargol of itself will not make fat. Eat it between meals and you probably will not gain a pound. But eat a single Sargol tablet with every meal and soon you may be gaining a pound [illegible]. Sargol is the missing link between food-eating and fat-making. It makes the food of your meals put flesh on your body.

If the sugar you put in your coffee does not dissolve it does not sweeten the coffee. It is the dissolving, not the sugar, that makes the coffee sweet. It is the same with your food. Unless it is properly dissolved in your stomach, separating the flesh-making nourishment from the waste, and unless the blood absorbs its full portion of the fat-making material you must stay thin.

Here is where Sargol plays its part.

It acts on every mouthful you eat. It promptly stops the leakage of fats. It lets only the waste leave the body. It puts your food in a condition that means its perfect assimilation by the blood and tissues. Your body cells which have been starved begin to thrive and you begin to take on weight quickly. It's not a theory—not an experiment, but a proved fact that thousands are trying every day. Sargol succeeds where all other so-called flesh builders fail because it enables you to get 100 per cent. efficiency from your food.

Your good common sense must prove to you that if the food you eat gives you only 25 per cent. of its 100 per cent. value, that you are cheating yourself just 75 per cent. You can never be the man or woman you should be and can be so long as you continue to live on a 25 per cent. basis.

No matter how thin you are or how long you have been thin Sargol should add pounds of solid, healthy stay-there flesh to your weight and make your figure plump and symmetrical. Get a package of Sargol from your dealer and prove it today. Use it as directed and watch your daily [illegible] of flesh on your body. Sargol is absolutely harmless and is always sold on a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back.

JURY PUTS GIRL'S HAIR AT $20,000

NEW YORK, May 5.—The worth of a woman's hair was fixed at $20,000 by a jury in the Supreme Court, which awarded that sum to 16-year-old Mary Haynes of Brooklyn, in her suit against the Cooke & Cobb Company, dye makers, by whom she was formerly employed. Miss Haynes' hair was pulled out by the roots in an accident in the defendant's factory.

LOBSTERS FLOOD MARKET

Large shipments of lobsters are still flooding the Boston market. Dealers say the shipments during the week have been the largest in many years. They are cheap, too. They are selling live lobsters at sixteen cents and boiled lobsters at seventeen cents a pound.

Owing to the closing of many lobster canneries in Nova Scotia, as a result of the war, additional consignments from these markets come in daily.

In the fruit line strawberries predominate. They are plentiful and selling as low as twenty cents a box. The berries in the present market are large, sound and exceptionally juicy.

Eggs continue cheap. Hennery eggs are selling for twenty-seven and twenty-eight cents a dozen. Good fresh eggs may be obtained at twenty-five cents and the Western at twenty-three cents.

Former Police Chief Wins.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 5.—Outstripping all competitors in the early returns, Charles E. Sebastian, suspended chief of police, apparently won first place on the Mayoralty ticket in the municipal primary.

DOROTHY DIX DESCRIBES MRS. CARMAN'S ORDEAL AT SECOND DEATH TRIAL

Faces Accusers With More Calmness and Confidence Than at First Hearing.

By DOROTHY DIX.

MINEOLA, N. Y., May 5.—It was Spring without and Spring within the picturesque little Mineola courthouse when, for the second time, the Carman trial resumes.

The weather was bright and balmy. The august judge beamed benevolently from the bench and enlivened the dreary grind of jury getting with a few witty sallies. The opposing lawyers smiled fraternally upon each other. The prisoner and her husband radiated cheerfulness and carefulness. Everybody seemed bent on being a little ray of human sunshine.

Looking at it all, it was hard to realize that it was a murder trial and not a matinee or an afternoon reception, and that the grimmest and most serious business in the world was about to be undertaken—that of demanding a life for a life, not in the heat of passion, nor by way of savage revenge, but in the cold, hard name of justice, and that organized society may be preserved.

DEFENDANT LOOKS YOUNGER.

A famous criminal lawyer once told me that he had never known any man or woman tried for murder, whether he or she was innocent or guilty, or acquitted or convicted, who was not broken by the ordeal. Certainly this is not the case with Mrs. Carman. She came into court to face again the most terrible experience that any human being is ever called on to endure, looking not only blithe and untroubled, as if she had not a care in the world, but actually ten years younger than she looked at her previous trial.

She has put on flesh during the Winter, just enough to make her face round and girlish, and to wipe out all of the tired lines and the strained expression in it. Evidently she has not worried over regret for the past, or fears for the future, and in the present she bears herself with the most amazing calm, for in spite of the jeopardy in which she stands—and even innocence does not always go free—she not only gazed idly and curiously about the courtroom, as any disinterested spectator might have done, but smiled with unfeigned mirth and enjoyment at all of the foolish little humorous happenings of the day.

Mrs. Carman was beautifully and appropriately dressed in a dark blue serge, tailor-made and bound with black braid, the coat worn over a white blouse, and with a little black hat trimmed with bands of velvet, and a wreath of dark blue and red flowers. About her neck was the narrow black band of velvet she always wears, and on her hands long white gloves, immaculately fresh.

NEW TRIAL JUDGE.

The scene in the courtroom differed but little from that of the previous trial. There is a new judge, Justice Blackmar, clean cut of face, incisive and caustic of speech, who swept away the usual redundant verbiage of the questions to the prospective jurors, as if it had been so much cobwebs. "Of course you will convict on circumstantial evidence," quoth he, "all evidence is circumstantial. Everybody who was ever convicted was convicted on circumstantial evidence," and thereby he stopped the never-ending wrangle on the subject to such good purpose that talesmen came and went, and were disposed of in record breaking time.

At the prosecutor's table sat District Attorney Smith, who tried Mrs. Carman before, with his assistants, Mr. Woods and Mr. Weeks, but Mrs. Carman's fate lies in different hands. Surrogate Graham, who made such a brilliant defence for her last Fall, is out of the case, and George Levy, who has been her personal counsel ever since the night on which Mrs. Bailey was killed, and who looks like a little boy playing at law instead of the regular, full-fledged lawyer that he is, is to be her trial lawyer. He is assisted by Messrs. Clock and Seeman, two elderly, gray-haired attorneys of Freeport.

At the first trial Mrs. Carman was continually surrounded by a piteous family group, her old mother and father, both feeble and heart-broken, and her little girl, and a wan-faced sister. The only member of her household present was Dr. Carman, ruddy and wearing his famous smile.

PICKS JURY HERSELF.

Mrs. Carman picked the jury herself. Several times her counsel held spirited arguments with her in regard to the eligibility of some talesmen, but she insisted on making the final decision. She had not forgotten that the juryman, Joseph Astin, whom she objected to at the last trial, and whom she felt in some occult way was antagonistic to her, was the man who was responsible for the hung jury and the mistrial. She let the judgment of her lawyers override her then, but this time she is depending upon her own intuition.

It was like seeing a poignant little drama to watch her as each talesman was questioned. She leaned forward on the table, her face tense with anxiety, her eyes fixed with a burning eagerness on the face of the man, as she scanned each feature, and tried to read in his looks or his answers some message that would tell her how he would deal with her, how safe her life would be in his hands. You could feel her very soul going out to question him, and each time she ran the whole gamut of hope and fear, and anguished anxiety, for to these men she was about to commit her fate.

The first trial of Mrs. Carman was a rose water affair, in which Prosecutor Smith tried to combine justice with mercy and consideration for his old friend and neighbor. What this trial is to be remains on the knees of the gods, but rumor has it that it is to be a much more ruthless affair and that Mrs. Carman stands in far greater danger now than she did before.

HAVE NEW WITNESSES.

It is said that not only will the story of Mrs. Ida Powell, Mrs. Carman's sister, and little Elizabeth Carman have to undergo the acid test of a rigid cross-examination, instead of being accepted practically without question, as they were at the first trial, but that people who were not called at all as witnesses at the first trial will give damaging testimony at this. These new witnesses are all neighbors of the Carmans, and it is alleged that they will testify that no one crossed the Carman lawn after the shooting, or left the place. It is also said that one of the surprises of the trial will be proving that Mrs. Bailey was killed before dusk on that June evening, and two hours before the murder was reported to the police.

But be these rumors true or false, the Carman trial presents this curious aspect, that here is a woman being tried for her life with everybody wanting her to be freed, not because they believe that she is innocent, but because at the bottom of our souls we all have a sneaking sympathy with jealousy. It is the primal passion, the one elemental emotion that sweeps away the civilization of centuries and turns us into savages ready to fight and kill to protect our own hearthstone and keep our own.

It is acknowledged that Mrs. Carman has endured every torture of jealousy that can tear at the human heart, and this knowledge has won for her a universal sympathy. Perhaps it will temper justice with mercy, even if the evidence against her is stronger at this trial than it was at the first.

'HAZEL EYES' IS NEW WOMAN OF MYSTERY IN THE CARMAN TRAGEDY

trial to drag along. He is desirous of having the case finished this week, and beginning tonight has ordered evening sessions of the trial.

District Attorney Smith is relying upon two witnesses to support his claim that Mrs. Bailey was killed an hour before the time that the Carman family asserts the tragedy occurred. The identity of these witnesses was learned today.

They are Mrs. W. W. Black and Raymond Miller, neighbors of the Carmans at Freeport. Mrs. Black lives just west of the Carman house. Miller is a real estate dealer and was visiting at a home across the street from the Carman residence when Mrs. Bailey was killed. Miller was closeted with the district attorney for an hour before the trial opened.

The first witness was Coroner Gordon Norton of Nassau county, who investigated the Bailey case. He said he was notified of the shooting at 8:10 p. m. and hurried to the Carman house in Freeport, where he searched unsuccessfully for the weapon.

The next witness, Walter P. Cousins, a Freeport policeman, said that Dr. Carman called up police headquarters at 8 o'clock and gave notification of the shooting.

HEARD FATAL SHOT.

Mrs. Black, a neighbor of the Carmans, swore that she heard the shot which killed Mrs. Bailey and immediately afterward saw a man wearing a slouch hat near the window through which the bullet had been fired.

Mrs. Black's daughter corroborated her mother's testimony. Archie Post of Freeport, who was in the waiting room of Dr. Carman's office on the evening of the shooting, testified that he saw Mrs. Ida Powell, the mother of Mrs. Carman, in Dr. Carman's office immediately after the shooting, but denied that he had seen the doctor's wife.

Mr. Smith took twenty minutes to tell the jurymen what he intends doing. Then in rapid succession he called Mrs. Jennie Duryea, mother of the murdered woman; Miss Madeline Bailey, the dead woman's daughter; Catherine Haggerty of Rockville Center, whom Mrs. Bailey visited a few hours before she was murdered; Harry Haw, the [illegible] who saw Mrs. Bailey 200 feet from the Carman house about 7 o'clock on the evening of June 30; Dr. Hubert [illegible] Thorpe, the surgeon, who performed the autopsy, and Fred C. [illegible], the undertaker.

"I shall show," repeated Mr. Smith, "that Mrs. Bailey was murdered while it was not yet quite dark, while it was still quite light, and not at 8 o'clock, as was decided at the first trial.

WOMAN HEARD SHOT.

"I shall show that this was a deliberate and premeditated murder."

It is said that Mr. Smith will produce a woman who will say she sat on the porch of her home within full view of the Carman lawn, and that when it was yet quite light—before street lamps were lighted—she heard a report that sounded like the explosion of the tire of a motor car. She will also, it is said, that she saw [illegible] across the lawn and leap the fence, as the defence maintains.

At the first trial the prosecution attempted to show that the shot was fired a considerable time before the police were notified, but the exact time of the shooting never was settled.

The defence sprung a surprise at the end of the trial by producing a witness who swore that it was dark and that he saw a man flee across the Carman lawn [illegible] a picket [illegible] adjoining [illegible] to see [illegible] according to this testimony.

Synopsis

Professor Miles Stilliter writes to his friend, Gordon Barclay, millionaire, asking his help in an effort to preach the gospel of efficiency and good, to prevent the revolution he sees impending in the United States, and suggesting that this gospel must come through a woman, as a heaven-sent messenger. Barclay agrees, provided the woman is sincere. Stilliter tells him she does not have to come from heaven, but only has to think she does.

They meet, and Stilliter tells him of the child he has in view—the child who must be taught. He sees the following day that an accident has left fatherless the little daughter of John Amesbury, and that her mother is also badly hurt.

He visits the Amesbury home and there sees the little girl, the beautiful child of the eugenic marriage of cultivated parents.

Stilliter is charmed with the girl. He meets Tommy Barclay, little son of his rich friend—and the two take a dislike to each other.

Stilliter abstracts three photographs and leaves.

Later he is summoned by Barclay, who has told his plans to Sturtevant and Semmes, friends and financiers.

After he is introduced the news comes that the little Amesbury girl's mother is dying.

BARCLAY was not unmoved. "She thinks," he said, "that she is only dying of grief. As a matter of fact, she is taking a great place in the march of events."

"What are the child's habits?"

"She has a nap," said Professor Stilliter, "from 10 to 10:30 and from 3 to 3:30. At other times she is mostly out of doors with her nurse. There is a wood back of the house, in which she has a playhouse, a see-saw, etc. If you wished to see her it would be a simple matter, but I am ready to stake my reputation on her. She is absolutely cut to our plan."

"Which," said Semmes, "is so far a complete mystery to Sturtevant and myself."

In spite of Professor Stilliter's guarantee, the triumvirate, as they were both popularly and unpopularly called, determined to have a look at the little Amesbury girl for themselves. In a car driven so swiftly that the traffic cops had to look the other way so as not to get dust in their eyes, it did not take them long to reach the Amesbury house.

They did not, however, draw up before the house itself, but in the wood back of it. Here, togged out in Indian dress so that she resembled the ornamental side of a cent, they found the object of their search. It was no difficult task for three such men to lull any suspicion that the child's nurse may have had.

They complimented her upon the health and good manners of her little charge, inquired after his mistress and learned with every semblance of regret that the latter was sinking hourly. They joked Professor Stilliter a little on the fear with which he seemed to inspire the child. But to Stilliter, looking far ahead, perhaps this aversion seemed a serious thing.

"Well," he said brusquely, "am I right? Is she the finest child you ever saw, or isn't she? Just see the breadth of her skull above the ears."

He would have touched her, but she shrank from him. When Barclay, however, spoke to her she showed neither fear nor aversion, only a pleasant shyness.

"I have never seen you before," he said, "but I am very fond of little girls, and since I have none of my own I do not propose to lose sight of you in a hurry."

Leaving the others, he took the child and the nurse for a little drive in the car, and when they had come back he slipped something that jingled into the nurse's hand, so that the flighty woman felt prepared to go through fire for him.

The little Amesbury girl was of an age when most impressions do not long survive. She would neither remember her father, nor her mother, nor her nurse, nor her Indian dress, nor the playhouse, nor the see-saw in the wood, but always she had a vague recollection of three great and important personages, who treated her as if she were more important than they were, and who on parting from her bowed over the chubby, dimpled hand and kissed it for all the world as if she had been a princess.

It wasn't exactly a recollection either, for she did not remember their faces, nor how they came into her life, nor how they departed. It was more like a dream, only fragments of which here and there survive in the waker's mind. It wasn't altogether a pleasant dream. There mingled with it a certain something of the essence of a nightmare.

Whether it was another man in the background or some monstrous beast with extraordinarily large, black-rimmed eyes she did not know.

It is curious that she should remember a little of all this and nothing of that message which came presently from the house—a message brought by one servant to another and crudely blurted forth in the hearing of a child.

"Old Flames!"

No. 1.
His Mother

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1915, by International News Service.

"THERE in the silver flame of the candle I see night after night my own 'Old Flames.' The man with the frosty cap to his hair and the subtle little shadows of the years that 'pile up' falling on his face, smiled over his pipe into the pink-hearted fire and named them off for me.

"Sure enough, a chap who's lived as long as I is beginning to see faces in things. And I shall tell you No. 1."

The man, with his mind gone gladly back, travelling a familiar road with feet that gratefully trode the road called boy-lane again, drew hard on his pipe and I knew it was to curb the ache of tears in his throat and brows. He lifted his eyes and they glittered wet.

"It was my mother. My little mother. She was my first love. I adored her with all my tiny boy-heart. I was three when she died. Though I lost her so long ago—I have the deep darkness and kindness of her eyes—the drifting away in the tossing boat of her arms as she swung in a rocking chair that I possess (it is still red—still has little ugly yellow flowers painted on it—though she is gone)—the memory that her hair was brown as a chestnut burr and silky and long—long as the time from one Christmas to the other (and any boy knows how long that is), the golden shine of the plain band-ring on her finger as I turned and twisted it with idle hands—and the songs she used to sing! The songs she sang!

"Little Mother with the golden voice and the arms that were my drifting sea, with the velvet cheeks and the deep eyes above which the brows sprang like little brown feathers—little mother who vanished away so quickly and left your gay, young face painted a picture on your boy's heart—I would give all the memories of the loves that followed—all the realities of them—the hope of them—if I could be back below the bending light of your face and hear you singing again, 'Sail on Silver Moon!' And I cannot!

"That was my first Love—the first of my 'Old Flames'—Mother o' mine."—NELL BRINKLEY.

A Man and His Wife

Duval Makes Some Flattering Remarks to Isabel When John Is Absent

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XLII.

Copyright, 1915, Star Company.

THE dinner which Isabel Hamilton gave to Mr. and Mrs. Ferris was a greater success, she thought, than had been the one to which John's special friends had been invited.

To be sure, there was little drinking and less loud laughter than at the dinner at which Adelaide Simmons had been the guest of honor. The sherry left over from that function was all-sufficient for this more sedate affair, and there were no cocktails. The benedictine was served in the living room, as before, and the conversation was pleasant, if not gay.

John acquitted himself well and his wife observed how much better his gracious dignity became him than did the free-and-easy manner he was in the habit of adopting with a less conventional group of people. It was plain that Mr. and Mrs. Ferris were agreeably impressed by their host, and Isabel had a thrill of gratification as she noted this fact. Now that she and John seemed to be drawing farther apart, she remembered frequently Ida's simile with regard to the two swimmers in the matrimonial seas, and was anxious that her friend should not know that her laughing prediction was beginning to be fulfilled.

It was half-past ten when the guests of honor said that it was time for them to go home. Ella Sanger had come in a cab and asked John to please call up the garage from which she had obtained it and order it sent at once to the Hamilton apartment house. As John did her bidding, and she went to Isabel's room to put on her wraps, David Duval turned to his hostess.

"I've had an awfully pleasant time," he said. "Do you know I have not been to such a delightful affair in a long while."

"Not even at Mrs. Simmons'?" Isabel spoke on the impulse of the moment and regretted her speech as soon as she had made it. "I beg your pardon!" she exclaimed. "That was not a polite nor a kind question to ask."

Duval smiled good-naturedly. "I see nothing out of the way in your question," he said. It is not as if Mrs. Simmons was my very close friend. She is a jolly woman—and good company in a way—but I have never been an habitue of her home as some other men have." As, for instance—Dennis."

His hostess noticed the slight pause before Dennis' name, and she was sure that Duval had come near making the blunder of speaking of John as an habitue of Mrs. Simmons' home. That was undoubtedly the way that people regarded John,—people who had seen him with Adelaide. But she spoke unconcernedly.

"I have only been in Mrs. Simmons' home once," she remarked, "so I know few of her associates."

"You and she are of different worlds," he observed. I do not fancy you two would have much in common."

Yet John was her friend. Here, again, was the doctrine that was constantly confronting her—that of one standard for man another for woman.

"If she is the friend of nice men, I do not see why she might not be a friend of nice women, too"—she began, then stopped as John entered.

"I have called up Miss Sanger's cab," he announced. "It will be here in a minute. Tell her so—will you Isabel?"

She started to do his bidding, pausing as she passed him to say in a low voice—"You will offer to escort her home, won't you, John?"

"Why?" he asked, following her out into the hall. "She will be safe in a cab."

"But she was present at the other dinner when you protested against Mrs. Simmons—her cousin—going home alone in a taxi at this time of night."

"That's so," he mused. "I have it!" with a sudden clearing of his face,—"Duval will be glad to take her home."

"He has made no move to leave yet," Isabel said hurriedly. "You can hardly suggest his doing so—in your own house. No, my dear, it is your place to accompany Miss Sanger."

"Confound it!" John muttered as he started towards his dressing-room for his hat and coat. "It's an infernal nuisance!"

'You do not always consider that kind of thing a nuisance," she said.

He looked at her squarely. "I suppose," he retorted, "that you mean to remind me that I was willing to escort Adelaide home the other night. I do not deny it. I would have been glad to. She is my very good friend."

There was a note of defiance in his voice and his wife heard it. But she met it without excitement. "Then, as Miss Sanger is your very good friend's cousin," she suggested, "it might be a pleasure to you to do anything for her. I will go and see if she is ready."

John, making the best of what he felt was a bad bargain, left the house with Ella Sanger, but David Duval lingered. When he and his hostess were alone he turned to her with an effort to be frank, yet with some embarrassment.

"May I speak plainly, dear lady?" he asked. "You suggested just now that one who is a man's friend may also be a woman's friend. Perhaps so. But there are women and women. Adelaide Simmons is a good woman, —according to her code—and in some respects a kind-hearted one. But she is not of as refined a nature as you, nor does she look at life as you look at it. She has had experiences that have embittered her. Now she is trying to snatch from life that which it seems so far to have denied her. She is not an intimate friend of mine. I have no women friends with whom I am on confidential terms. Will you forgive me if I say that I wish I were worthy the friendship of a woman whom I could trust and look up to—such a woman as yourself?"

"Oh, Mr. Duval!" she laughed nervously.

"I mean it!" he returned, looking down at her intently as she stood before him. "Perhaps some day you will believe that I long for your friendship—that I want to know you better."

She tried to laugh again. Yet long after he had said good-night and gone his way, she was conscious of a warm feeling about her heart when she remembered his words. Was the feeling friendship—or was it gratified vanity?

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad aftereffects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids.

It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "loggy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. At 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

ZOE

Mrs. Brooke Is Seen With Crawley by the Amazed Leveredge.

(Copyright, 1915, Associated Newspapers, Ltd. Serial rights in U. S. A. held by International News Service.)

(By CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN.)

THE woman started and went very pale. Then she rose abruptly and Crawley caught his breath.

"Let us go!" she said huskily. "Why did we ever come here?"

"But you haven't touched your tea!"

"I don't want any tea! Pay the girl and come!"

"Where?"

"To Grosvenor road."

Before he could say another word she was sweeping majestically toward the door. As she passed Eva Warren she drew her skirts to her as if she were afraid of contaminating them by letting them come in contact with the English wild rose of Crawley's dreams. The man saw the action and ground his teeth.

"10A Grosvenor road!" He shouted it defiantly, for all the world to hear. What mattered anything now?

But it was one of those ordinary coincidents of life that allowed Mrs. Balshaw, one of the smartest of London hostesses, to be passing at that precise moment. One had to speak in a very low whisper indeed if one wanted to avoid Mrs. Balshaw's almost supernatural sense of hearing. That lady had observed Mrs. Brooke. She did not know Mrs. Brooke by name, but she saw that she was extraordinarily beautiful and that her sables were worth a King's ransom.

She knew Noel Crawley, however, and went out of her way to bow to him. Crawley merely acknowledged her salutation and Mrs. Balshaw immediately concluded that the glorious creature of the sables was occupying too much of his attention. Certainly she looked all right. There was no doubt about that. Also there was nothing extraordinary in Crawley giving his own address to the cabman.

* * *

"Hullo! Eva, what's the matter with you?" exclaimed Sir Squire. "Aren't you well? Place too stuffy, eh? You're very silent all at once."

The girl started.

"Oh, I'm all right!" she answered, bravely enough, and smiled into the grim, kindly face of her father. "I—I was only thinking."

Just as they were leaving they met Mrs. Balshaw, who greeted Sir Squire effusively.

"Ah, here's the rest of the family!" she exclaimed, as she kissed Eva robustly on each cheek, despite that young lady's obvious endeavor to escape such osculatory salutations.

"The rest of the family? What do you mean?" inquired Sir Squire.

"Well, Noel Crawley's in the family, isn't he—or he soon will be, won't he, dear? I've just met him. By the way, who is that awfully handsome woman he's just gone off with—the woman in the sables? And what sables!"

"I don't know," quickly answered Eva. "Mr. Crawley has not been with us."

Crawley and Mrs. Brooke had driven half-way down St. James street before either had said a word. As for Crawley he seemed oblivious of the very presence of the woman, and Zoe sat with eyes half closed and lips set tight, her brows drawn and contracted in an ominous frown.

The position was childishly ridiculous, and the woman was the first to realize it. She sat bolt upright, and laid her hand suddenly on his arm.

"Noel," she said, in a voice that was hoarse with emotion, "do speak! Say something, for Heaven's sake! Are you very, very angry with me? You are killing me by this behavior."

"By Heavens," he muttered. "Sit back! Hide your face!"

"What is it?" she gasped faintly. "What is the matter?"

The matter was that a portly, overdressed man was standing on the steps of a St. James street club. He had been conversing with the hall porter, and when he caught sight of Crawley he waved his fat hand familiarly. Then he glanced at Crawley's companion, and gave vent to an exclamation of bewildered surprise.

"Christopher Columbus!" he muttered, and his cod-fishy eyes opened widely, as a cunning leer came into his pasty, pendulous face. Well, I'm jiggered! It's Crawley's Circe.' Now I'm beginning to see things."

The taxi passed swiftly down the hill. Mr. Leveredge watched it, smiling blandly and drawing hard at his cigar.

Crawley muttered something inarticularly and turned to Mrs. Brooke.

"Did you see who that was?" he asked dramatically; then, suddenly realizing that he was behaving rather stupidly and that absolute calmness was necessary, he added: "That was Leveredge. He saw me; I wonder if he saw you."

"Leveredge?" Her beautiful lips parted and she leaned forward peering in a dazed manner into his stern, set face.

"Yes, Leveredge," he answered grimly, "and it's ten to one he saw you."

"Oh, Noel," she pleaded tremulously, "don't be so angry with me!"

"Oh, but you must speak to me!" she pleaded. "Don't be cruel. You are a man, Noel, and I—I am only a woman. Have some pity. I can't bear it—no, I can't Noel! Oh, why didn't you let me do it yesterday? Why? It would have been so easy!"

"For you, perhaps," he answered rather brutally. "You do not think of me and—and your husband.

"You must know, Noel, that Godfrey, whatever he may be to me in the eyes of the law and in the eyes of the world, he is not my husband; I do not love him. He is nothing to me."

The man looked at her sharply.

"I don't understand such an argument," he said coldly. "But tell me, did you ever love him?"

"Oh, I suppose so—after a fashion I don't know. I have often wondered. He was good to me, and I was very, very lonely and tired and weak. He was strong and rich, and —well somehow I thought he was going to be a very great man."

"And so he is.

"I know. But then I had not met you then. I do not know what love was. I was asleep, drugged, as it were. It was only when you came and awakened me that I understood. Oh, Noel, you must know! Haven't I shown you? Haven't I given you my very life to do with as you chose? And yet you speak to me as you do."

"You must not talk like that, Zoe," he interrupted sternly. "I thought we clearly settled all that yesterday."

"Was it yesterday? It seems like a hundred years." She shivered, and something like terror ran through the man's veins. A hundred years? Why, since that time he seemed to have lived through a hundred lifetimes!

"Look here, Zoe," he said in low-masterful tones, "are you going to be sensible or are you not? We have little over an hour to discuss everything—and heavens knows there's enough to discuss! "He groaned inwardly. He was thinking of Brooke, of Eva, and, above all, of Circe and Leveredge's implacable demands.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Bloom of Youth
Now Easily Attained

You no longer need to "doctor" that sallow, freckled, blackheaded, rough, blotchy, pimply or over-red skin. You can remove it, instead—easily, painlessly, inexpensively. By a new scientific process, which anyone can use without assistance, the dead and near-dead surface skin, with all its imperfections, is gently, gradually absorbed—and a radiantly youthful and beautiful complexion comes forth! Go to your druggist, get an ounce of pure mercolized wax; at night apply enough of this to completely cover the face; don't rub it in. Next morning remove the wax with warm water. The result after a few days is astonishing. You wonder why this secret wasn't discovered long ago.

Let the wrinkled folks also take hope. Put an ounce of powdered saxolite into a half pint witch hazel, bathe the face in the solution and—say!—there's nothing that will so effectually, so promptly, smooth out all those hateful lines.

Woods' Funeral to Be Held Tomorrow

Funeral services for Councilman William H. Woods will be held tomorrow morning in St. Columbkille's Church on Market street, Brighton, with Mayor Curley, City Messenger Edward Leary, Clerk of Committees John Dever and many of the late councilman's South Boston friends acting as honorary pallbearers. A solemn high mass of requiem will be celebrated. The members of the City Council will attend in a body.

ARBITRARY FILM MEASURES ARE ATTACKED

Representative Bowser of Wakefield Tells Why He Opposed New Bills.

New Propositions Injure More Than Help Conditions, He Declares.

Representative Eben K. Bowser of Wakefield, one of the three members of the Judiciary Committee who dissented to the compromise censorship bill reported last week, today told why he voted against the measure. He said:

"What sense is there in passing new laws which injure rather than benefit? I prefer the present statute to the Judiciary Committee bill. The measure reported adds as a censor the chief justice of the Boston Municipal Court. The present statute bestows the power of censorship upon the Mayor and police commissioner.

"Now I have the most profound respect for Chief Justice Bolster. I think he is a splendid type of judge and citizen. But when I say I don't think he should sit as a censor of photo plays or any other public entertainment I do not wish to reflect in the slightest measure on him personally.

"My objection is general. I do not think a justice whose tenure of office is for life should be asked to censor plays or films with the Mayor and police commissioner. Not that a judge wouldn't be apt carefully and conscientiously to weigh all the facts, as I am sure Chief Justice Bolster would do, but such a statute would establish a dangerous precedent.

"In the first place the committee measure gives a power altogether too arbitrary, and, in the second place, it bestows the power to a judge who is appointed and not elected. He and the Mayor and police commissioner must be unanimous in their decision from which there can be no appeal.

'RELIEF' MISSES MARK.

"I would prefer to give all the power to a Mayor, because he could be made answerable to the people if he was found to be false to his trust and to graft. Another feature I dislike about the committee bill is failure to specify cause for suspension and failure to give aggrieved managers the right to appeal.

"I say if we cannot improve the present law let it alone. I haven't seen a relief measure offered yet that comes anywhere near hitting the mark.

It is my purpose to offer an amendment to the Judiciary Committee censorship bill to eliminate the chief justice of the Municipal Court as a censor. If that is done I feel satisfied the bill will die a natural death, because the committee will then have no further interest in it.

"I have seen 'The Birth of a Nation' twice. It is a wonderful production from a photographic and entertainment standpoint. It is really thrilling. It shows the possibilities of the motion picture art. The photoplay has come to stay, and it is already a tremendous power in our everyday life. It has great educational advantages. It is growing with leaps and bounds, as the production at the Tremont Theatre shows. Therefore proper safeguards should be prepared to protect rather than injure the industry.

"Even if the Judiciary Committee bill were made a law it admittedly could not prevent the exhibition of 'The Birth of a Nation' which apparently has been the target for the various measures offered. Why stir matters up and attempt changes that will leave us deeper in the mire than if we stand by the present law?"

'BILLS TOO ARBITRARY.'

"The committee bill and kindred measures are too broad and arbitrary. They are not just. Such laws could be so abused as to interfere with public meetings and free speech and freedom of the press. While freedom of the press is sacred it might be argued that next to it should be freedom of the stage, except where virtue and morals are assailed."

At the hearing to be given today by the Senate Committee on Ways and Means the Massachusetts Exhibitors League, Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange and the Central Labor Union will oppose the Carstens bill, which aims to give censorship power to the State Board of Labor and Industries and to impose a tax of $1 to $2 on all films brought into the State.

The following denouncement of the Carstens bill has been issued by Fred J. Dempsey, president Local 11, International Alliance Stage Employes, and John J. Barry, corresponding secretary of the Boston Central Labor Union:

"FANATICAL LEGISLATION OPPOSED BY ORGANIZED LABOR.

"Any measure, whether private or public, or of private or legislative origin, that contemplates danger for the interests of personal liberty or the rights of the hosts of the working men in Massachusetts cannot and will not receive the support of the labor organizations throughout the State.

"Senate Bill 202, under discussion before the Senate of Massachusetts, is such a measure, and in its conception shows a woeful lack of consideration of the facts governing the exhibition of motion pictures which its proponents seek to hamper, and absolutely no positive knowledge of the far-reaching and disastrous effects of the passage of this bill.

"They ask that a sweeping censorship of motion pictures be vested in a State Board composed of three members, but have they ever asked themselves or anyone else what the effects of such a condition would be? Upon their own statements they would eliminate the possibility of producing about 30 per cent. of the output of film plays that are now being shown in this Commonwealth.

SEE PERIL IN BILLS.

"Do they know that the present output of motion pictures is hardly sufficient to supply the demand necessary to continue the operation of upward of 600 theatres in this State devoted to their exhibition?

"And what would this mean? It does not take a person of extraordinary intelligence to figure out that inevitably about thirty per cent. of the motion picture theatres of the State would be forced to close their doors. Thirty per cent. of the poor man's—the working man's—theatres would be barred to them.

"Is it a just or promising measure that proposes to deprive the working man of his cheap amusement?

"And what would be the further result of the adoption of this legislation? Cannot its proponents conceive that with thirty per cent. of their product useless on their hands the film manufacturers must, for the salvation of their business in this State, ask more from the exhibitor who is fortunate enough to still have his licenses for the privilege of showing the pictures to the public?

"And as that most will happen, [illegible] it means that the exhibitor will ask of the patron that he make up the increased cost of doing business. Who, then, is the ultimate sufferer but the public, the ordinary man, woman or child who can afford a nominal small price of admission but who cannot afford the luxury of the higher priced entertainment? And it would not be long [illegible] picture shows at prices up to fifty cents. In short the passage of this measure would [illegible] the death of the poor man's show.

"Have these seekers after frenzied legislation considered for a minute that in the closing of thirty per cent. of the motion picture theatres of Massachusetts they would throw out of employment the [illegible] employes of conservatively 175 theatres?

CALL FOR FREEDOM.

"If they want it further enumerated let us quote figures. It would mean the unemployment of about 175 operators and possibly 150 assistants, at least 800 musicians, at least 275 stage mechanics, and, at the very lowest, 1,800 other employes of these theatres depending upon them for a livelihood.

"It is hardly necessary to state that the projection of many picture theatres, entailing large costs of construction and meaning the employment now and permanently of many hundreds of working men of the Commonwealth, will be, and are, halted for the settlement of this perilous question.

"Organized labor has always stood and always will stand, not for the privilege and caprices of the few, be their classes, races or creeds, but for the full quota of freedom, and it does stand for the rights of the working man and the personal comforts of the poor man.

"Senate bill 202 seeks to encompass all of these, and, as a needless measure, aimed toward the supposed satisfaction of a few, is nothing less than a hysterical effort to place more law on the already overburdened statute books, where it is not only inefficient but not wanted.

"As opposed to this legislation the undersigned representatives of the Boston Central Labor Union ask that this bill be [illegible] with the true facts [illegible] in view [illegible] defeated [illegible] and happiness [illegible] of Massachusetts.

"Fred J. Dempsey, [illegible] 11 International [illegible] ployes. [illegible] secretary [illegible] Central Labor Union."

Trotter Not Guilty of Inciting Riot

Fleischer to Defend 'Birth of a Nation'

Dr. Charles Fleischer will defend "The Birth of a Nation" in a public debate in the Maverick Congregational Church, Central square, East Boston. His opponent will be Peter F. Fagan, a Boston newspaperman.

REMOVE WOMAN'S THIRTEENTH RIB

Miss Alecia Allen of No. [illegible] street, Everett, is recovering satisfactorily today from one of the most unusual operations ever performed in this country—the removal of a thirteenth set of ribs which had grown between the seventh and eighth vertebrae.

The discovery that she possessed one more set of ribs than the normal human allowance was made after more than fourteen years of suffering which had caused her withdrawal from school and compelled her to give up her life plan to become a teacher. She had to learn to use her left instead of her right hand, and most of the time endured excruciating pain, caused by the pressure on nerves and blood vessels.

The operation was performed by Dr. Charles W. Dickenson, who discovered the hidden cause of all her [illegible]. An incision about three [illegible] was made and the [illegible] removed. The operation [illegible] and was witnessed by a number of surgeons, [illegible] Louis McCarthy, Ralph C. Armstrong of Tufts Medical School and [illegible] McGlynn [illegible]. The operation was pronounced a success and the result is expected to be the complete relief of Miss Allen from her suffering of years.

COPYRIGHT 1915 THE HOUSE OF KUPPENHEIMER

YOU may think you are hard to fit, and perhaps you are—in the ordinary store. But not at Kennedy's.

You see, it's this way. Clothes making has been developed to such a high degree that ready-to-wear suits may now be had in sizes and proportions to fit men of the most unusual build.

But few indeed are the stores doing a business large enough to warrant carrying all these extra sizes. Thus it happens that many a man whom we fit without any trouble at all finds it impossible to get properly fitted anywhere else in Boston.

The stout man shown above isn't a circumstance beside many that we fit—the 7-footer with a 32 waist, for instance; or the extra-tall, stout man; or the chap as broad as he is long.

The House of Kuppenheimer

—devotes special and expert attention to the tailoring of clothes for men of unusual build. As large makers they can afford to do this, just as we, as large retailers, can afford to carry such clothes in wide variety. Kuppenheimer Suits for men of all shapes and sizes are here at

I am a Specialist

This is the day of specialization. The great advances and successes of the world today are made by specialists—men who spend all their ingenuity and effort toward producing one thing better than anyone ever has done it before.

I have spent every effort for many years toward perfecting the plans for an organization that, under my own direction, will produce a made-to-order suit for $20 that will have all the real value that can possibly be put into it—a suit that the high-priced tailors would ask from $60 to $80 to duplicate.

I have worked out the right lines of cutting the newest models so that they will keep their shape and fit forever. I have cut out all the little extra expenses that, in other shops, only make the price higher without adding a cent of real value to the suit.

Today you can buy a bicycle for $25—10 years ago the same thing cost $100. Today I come to you with a $20 Suit that heretofore you have been asked to pay $60 to $80 for. That's the whole story—specialization; and, remember, all tailors are not specialists. I, Dexter Thurber, am the

$20 Suit Specialist

Tomorrow I open my shop—It's a beauty, and it is located right where it is most convenient to drop in any time.

Opening at this time of season, naturally I have secured the very latest materials in the market, and this opening is really an advance style show of the latest creations in design and models.

Walk down by the windows and see the models. I'll probably be too crowded to do much business the opening day, but come in and look the shop over and shake hands, anyway.

How to Keep Well by Exercise

By JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

This is the third of the series of daily articles in explanation and amplification of the discussion published in the Boston Sunday AMERICAN between Julian Hawthorne and Dr. E. H. Nichols, associate professor at Harvard and physical director in charge of the students. The next article of this series will appear in tomorrow's Boston AMERICAN.

"I have been in athletics since 1853," I said to Dr. Nichols of Harvard the other day. "Since then, theories of physical education have passed through many phases, and I had experience of them all.

"There was the Winship theory of heavy weight lifting, and the Dr. Dio Lewis theory, which believed in wooden wands and beanbags, and the German theory with music and discipline, and the theories of no apparatus whatever, and the theory of physical regeneration by thought. I came out of it all with the conviction that light, regular exercise was best for the average man, young or old; for the old, exclusively so: the young might add violent sports as they pleased, provided they underwent suitable training.

"Running and rowing were my preference in college, and long after; and there were years when I practiced with heavy dumbells and other gymnastic apparatus.

"From seventeen to twenty-two I kept in strict training, in diet and otherwise, but from twenty-eight to thirty-five I took little exercise except walking.

"Then I found I was deteriorating, and began the light, regular exercise, mostly without apparatus, that I have kept up ever since.

"Now I am in perfect health, muscles flexible and in good condition, and I'm a trifle under weight, if anything.

"Barring organic disease or accident, what is to prevent any other man of sixty-nine or seventy from making a showing as good as that?"

I must in candor admit that I did not make a speech as long and specific as that to the doctor; experts in athletic life don't need to be told everything—they know it at a glance. I gave Dr. Nichols a few hints, and put the emphasis on the question.

"Life can no doubt be prolonged by moderate exercise," said the doctor, in a somewhat guarded manner; "but the trouble is, it costs money to take regular exercise. A youth goes into business down town, and his hours are from 9 till 5; what is he going to do?"

"You see some of them running in the evenings on the city streets," said I.

"Still," rejoined the doctor, "it is difficult for a young man in business to get systematic outdoor exercise."

"Anybody can do fifteen or twenty minutes free exercise before an open window," I suggested. But the doctor seemed to doubt it.

"Only a man with a jaw like a bulldog could keep that up," he objected. "To make it interesting enough, you need competition, and competition, after thirty-five, has drawbacks."

I began to suspect that Dr. Nichols was too young a man, in feeling if not in years, to know as much about the limitations of old men as I thought I did.

"Brittle arteries?" I suggested.

He assented. "All old men get brittle arteries. They hang around and don't get exercise enough. And you often find men who were athletic in their youth, who go pop! after they reach sixty."

"They would be all right if they practiced movements to exercise their liver and digestive tract," said I.

"Regular and careful eating helps," was the doctor's view, "but there are mighty few men who can keep their trousers up with a belt after fifty.

"If a man will avoid eating and drinking himself to death, and keeps up a reasonable amount of natural power, he can get along. But most athletic games are suited only to young men. After forty-five, golf is the best all-round game for old men. It takes them out of doors, and is good, healthy exercise, though, as I have said, it is about the worst thing, considered as a game, that I know of. But many men seem so much of an opposite opinion, that the adage, 'If golf interferes with business, give up business,' should apply to them."

The conception of old age restricted to golf did not appeal to me, and I recalled the apophthegm of the late Lord Palmerston, who was Prime Minister of England for twenty years or more, and lived into his eighties in sound health and good spirits.

The only exercise, apart from oratory and statesmanship, that he practiced, was horseback riding, and I asked the doctor what he thought of that as an alternative for golf. Palmerston had declared that "The outside of a horse is the best thing for the inside of a man."

Dr. Nichols lent an emphasis almost impassioned to his reply. "Horseback riding I know nothing about!" he declared. And he added, with greater emphasis, "I don't like horses!"

So any opening for old men in that direction was closed; they were fain to make the best of "the worst game in the world," and their outlook seemed gloomy. He had already expressed the opinion that walking was intolerable.

I forgot to ask him about croquet, and am inclined to congratulate myself upon my forgetfulness.

The situation seemed to be, that whatever an old man might be able to do in the way of games, the doctor disliked or despised, and that for all the games he liked, old men were incompetent.

I began to entertain misgivings that Dr. Nichols might share the alleged opinion of Dr. Osler, that old men were better out of the way altogether. But I reconsidered this surmise, because, had it been warranted, he would have urged their taking up football or sprinting. A man may hate horses and yet be tolerant of the aged. And yet, in spite of his predilections and prejudices, I am convinced there is not in all Boston a kindlier heart than that of Dr. Nichols!

JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

BAN JOHNSON IS NOT AFTER PEACE

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

President Ban Johnson of the American League left Boston after dining with General Charles H. Taylor at the Algonquin Club. The report that he was looking to bring about peace in baseball is erroneous. His position in the matter is about as follows:

He has not sought peace with the Federal League and has declined to meet Federal League men who desired to discuss the question with him. He did meet Mr. Ball, chief owner of the St. Louis Federal League club recently, but it was in regard to the matter of withdrawing the baseball suits now in court. Mr. Johnson expressed himself as being willing as far as he was concerned to drop the suits, but said he could only talk for himself and the American League. Further efforts to draw him out regarding a cessation of hostilities were futile, and he referred the Federal League men to his attorneys for any further information regarding the discontinuing of the suits now in court.

The "Czar of Baseball" made it clear before leaving Boston that he is perfectly willing to allow things to go as they are. He declares the American League is well fortified to stand baseball warfare, and he is firmly of the opinion that it is only a matter of time when the Federals will be forced to quit unless they insist on throwing good money after bad indefinitely.

EDDIE MURPHY IS KNOCKED OUT BY WHITE IN SEVENTH ROUND

By JACK CONWAY.

Charley White is today hurling a few new challenges in the direction of Freddy Welsh, lightweight champion of the well-known universe. The Chicago ring sensation is not the least bit bashful in stating that he would be able to dispose of the title holder by the knockout route in a twenty-round bout.

Any time that White and Welsh start in a little steeplechase over the Marathon distance, we are going to get reckless and wager one perfectly good box of ten-cent cigarettes on the Windy City youth. We gave him the up and down at the Atlas A. A., where he met our fellow townsman Eddie Murphy last night, and after all had been said and done we decided that White is some fighter. He is good enough to battle with the best of them, and we would not object a great deal if he asked for a job on our ball club. He would certainly be able to smash the dear old horsehide on the nose in the pinches, as the baseball scribblers would express it.

WHITE SCORES KNOCKOUT.

Before going any further with this young narrative it might be well to remark that White scored with the big punch in his whirl with Murphy in the seventh frame. The contest was stopped by the referee, but it was well that the honorable Mr. William Roche, who had charge of affairs within the ring, called a halt to festivities when he did, as the South Boston youth was all in and might have met with a serious injury if White had scored with another of his crashing blows.

The contest had a dramatic ending. Murphy had outpointed White for the greater part of five rounds. His tantalizing left jabs kept White at bay, while his speed and clever footwork enabled him to avoid many of White's deadly smashes.

Murphy's blows lacked power and did not have much effect on White. In the sixth frame, White started to fight in earnest. He brushed aside Murphy's light jabs, got to close quarters and sent Murphy up against the ropes with smashing left and right-hand blows. He then scored with one of his faomus left hooks to the jaw and Eddie went to the canvas for the count of nine.

Murphy was in poor condition when he regained his feet and was knocked down again after White landed with left and right-hand punches. The Peninsular youth was very excited and only took the count of six. He was dazed when he regained his feet and held his arms by his side. White landed another left hook and Murphy went down for the count of nine.

PENINSULAR BOXER OUTCLASSED.

Murphy was outclassed. He did not even have an outside chance to win, but his big heart refused to admit defeat and he finally managed to get up. White landed with left and right-hand blows. The bell then sounded and Eddie was saved for the time being. He staggered to his corner and was all but out.

There was considerable excitement when the bell announced the opening of the seventh frame. Murphy's brother, who answers to the name of Jerry, rushed into the ring. He realized that his brother would be stopped by a few well-directed punches and wished to prevent him from taking any unnecessary punishment.

Eddie, however, was anxious to continue with the bout and tried to rush past his brother. Jerry, however, refused to get out of the ring until a couple of his brother's seconds seized him and rushed him through the ropes.

Referee Roche should have halted the contest at that point as Murphy's brother, who was one of his seconds, committed a foul by getting into the ring.

The bout was finally continued and White immediately sent Murphy to the mat with a wicked left hook, followed by a right-hand smash to the jaw. Murphy's brother then jumped into the ring and Referee Roche stopped the bout although the South Boston boxer wished to continue the bout. It would have been foolish to have allowed him to do so.

EDDIE COURAGEOUS BOXER.

Murphy was beaten but not disgraced. He gave a wonderful exhibition of courageous fighting and is entitled to a world of praise but White was too much for him. It will take a ring marvel to beat the Windy City youth in a bout over the Marathon route.

The weight, which was 134 pounds at 4 o'clock, did not do Murphy any good. He was drawn when he entered the ring while White was as strong as the proverbial lion.

"Belgium" Brown won from Joe Farren, who substituted for "Young" Jasper, in the semi-final tussle of eight rounds. Tom Ross of the North End knocked out Bob Watts of Providence in three rounds, while Patsy Greene of Cambridge was awarded the decision over Joe Budreau, who hails from Somerville, after six rounds of fighting.

Gallant -Robideau in Atlas A. A. Go

Gilbert Gallant, Chelsea's rugged lightweight, has been matched to clash with Sam Robideau in a twelve-round bout which will be staged before the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night. The contest is sure to be crowded with action as the two boxers are great rivals. They fought a twelve-round draw in Fall River a couple of years ago, while Robideau knocked out Gallant in a contest held in Bridgeport, Ct., last Winter.

In the first Congress, 1789, in the exigency of raising revenue to pay for the war and the cost of government, there was fixed a duty on malt liquors at 8 cents, expressing the opinion that this rate "would be such encouragement as to induce the manufacture (of such mild malt beverages) to take deep roots in every state of the Union."

Tufts Nine to Play Boston College Today

Fresh from its great victory over Holy Cross, the Tufts baseball team will tackle Boston College this afternoon at Tufts Oval, and the Medford boys should continue their clean slate.

Tufts will not be able to present its strongest lineup, due to examinations at the medical school. Eastman will do the receiving in the place of "Red" Carroll and Anderson will take Volk's place at first. The batting order will be: Stafford 2b., Wescott c.f., Lee 3b., Anderson 1b., Angell l.f., Eastman 1b., Leland r.f., Armstrong s.s., Krepps p.

Bay Views Return to Semi-Pro. Fold

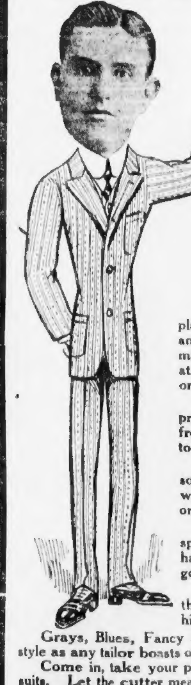
After an absence of a year from the semi-professional field, "Jud" Logan and his Bay Views are again ready to meet the strongest teams in their class. "Jud" makes it plain that his outfit is a first class semi-pro aggregation and only teams of that calibre need apply for games. Here is how the Bay Views will look in the field: McCarthy, c.; Knowlan, 1b.; Clancy, 2b.; Tracy, 3b.; Kane s. s.; Moore, l. f.; Sahfer, r. f.; Stockwell, Murphy or Hanley pitcher or centre-field; Manager Logan, care James Aylward, South Boston Inquirer.

Yale Uncovers New Football Wonder

NEW HAVEN, May 5.—Spring football practice at Yale, which has been in progress for three weeks, ended with contests in punting, drop-kicking, forward passing, etc. J. Braden of Washington, Pa., won the all-round championship with Waite second, and Hutchinson third.

Eighty men were in attendance at the practice, which was the most strenuous ever held at Yale. There was actual scrimmaging behind closed gates, and it is understood Head Coach Hinkey laid the foundations for a more versatile attack, with the lateral and forward pass. Six coaches assisted Hinkey.

CLEAN-UP WEEK



The first week in May has beeen appointed as clean-up week all over the city. I have gone through my stock with the intention of culling out everything in ends up to half pieces. Some I have sold myself as high as $25.00. There are 1900 yards of goods, purchased from a Hartford tailor last week, I want cleaned up, mostly in single suit lengths of high-priced woolens, some light weight, some heavy weight, and some medium weights, suitable for all year wear. I want to close out the entire range. Suit to order,

$10

I have loaded my windows to the utmost capacity, placed those goods out on the corner of my doorway and lined them up on each side of the store, so every man can make his own selection, at absolutely one price, suit to order $10.00

Blue Serge ends, bought to sell by Hartford's high-priced tailor for prices ranging from $30 to $35; my price, suit to order $10.00

United States Worsted Company's Blue Serge, sold by me for $15—$18—$20, while they last, suit to order, only $10.00

Genuine Priestley's English Serge that I made a specialty of this season at $15; I have half-dozen full pieces of this goods, suit to order.......... $10.00

Globe Unfinished Worsted that I sold early in the season as high as $25, suit to order...... $10.00

Grays, Blues, Fancy Silk Mixed Worsteds, as fine in style as any tailor boasts of for $35 a suit, to order....... $10.00

Come in, take your pick, some two, some three piece suits. Let the cutter measure you. They will be all sold at one price, suit to order........ $10.00

Hundreds of trousers, sold as high as $8-$10, a variety that would charm the eye of a connoisseur........ $3.25

Uncalled for Suits. Suits made up and uncalled for I have gathered from my different stores, ready to wear out........ $5, $6, $7

Uncalled for trousers........ $1.75

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

Of the thirty-eight cars now entered for the 500-mile race at Indianapolis on May 29 all but four will represent America, the other countries represented being Germany, France and England.

There is some question as to whether or not No. 4, which is a German-made car, will represent that nation or its entrant, an American.

England will have two representatives and France one. It is rather significant that of the cars entered all but two are of the four-cylinder type, these two, products of England, being of the six-cylinder class. It is officially stated that another entrant has been received but is not listed, inasmuch as the entrant desired to remain unknown until he found out whether he would be able to start. It is believed that this unknown entrant is the man who has a twelve-cylinder motor up his sleeve, and if so, it will be decidedly interesting to see how the car will perform against motors of the four and six-cylinder type. No eight-cylinder motor has been entered.

One of the most prized gifts which has come to the Australian branch of the Red Cross Society is an Indian Motorcycle ambulance, to be used in its work of alleviating suffering wherever the society may be called, to scenes of blood, fire or mining disasters. The ambulance was the gift of George M. Hendee, president of the Hendee Manufacturing Company, and was presented to Her Excellency Lady Helen Munro Ferguson, head of the Australian Red Cross Society, and wife of the governor-general of Australia, with appropriate ceremonies at Government House in Melbourne by T. K. Hastings, manager of the Indian Australian branch, acting as Mr. Hendee's personal representative.

THE BEAUTIFUL NEW YORK STATE BUILDING AT THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION AT SAN FRANCISCO

Looks Like A Close Finish A Big Vote In Series "B"

One of the features of the Exposition at San Francisco which impresses visitors is the wonderful display of art, and more than that, of art of the highest class, the work of American artists, sculptors and architects.

The effective mural paintings and beautiful statues, depicting the growth of the West, are recognized as masterpieces. It will be natural that the twenty-five guests of the Boston American should be interested particularly in the Massachusetts State Building and it will please them to find it an architectural work of art equal to anything within the grounds.

The American's guests, when they arrive at San Francisco on the morning of August 1st—after their delightful trans-continental journey—will probably go to the Exposition grounds as soon as convenient after they get settled in their hotel.

When they do, they should pay special attention for the first day, at least, and for the first evening to the gorgeous color effects and the paintings and statues referred to above.

The study of these will put them in a mood to appreciate the spirit of the Fair and of the men who have toiled and triumphed to make it the colossal success it is.

As previously announced, the American is making every effort to complete the counting, tabulating and checking of Series "B" coupons in time for the publication of the vote standing one week from next Sunday, May 16. The Contest Manager cannot promise this, but everything will be done to accomplish it.

This first vote standing will include all votes cast in Series "A," and Series "B."

Opportunity will loom up big for many of the candidates after this first vote standing is printed, because some of the "faint-hearted" will, undoubtedly, drop out of the race, making the path to success so much easier for those who have the courage, pluck and enterprise to remain and keep up the unceasing vote-gathering efforts until the finish of the contest.

Some twenty-five among you, candidates, are going to take this remarkable tour. It might just as well be YOU as one of your competitors.

Dental.

EDITORIAL WARNING
From the Boston American, April 24th
STUDY IT

The importance of the caring for the mouth by skilled professional service cannot be too strongly emphasized. Dentistry is a serious, painstaking, skill-requiring profession. The damage that can be done, and is done, by untrained and unregulated butchers of the mouth, to personal appearance, comfort, health and even life itself is incalculable.

[illegible] We are experienced dental specialists. [illegible]

Barnes Thinks Wrong and Acts Wrong Because He Thinks Wrong; Roosevelt Generally Thinks Right

To the Editor of the American:

OUR papers should editorially support Roosevelt in his attack upon "Boss" Barnes.

We may not always be able to uphold Roosevelt, but at least we can uphold him when he is attacking a discreditable "boss."

It is of no immediate consequence that Roosevelt in times past consorted with the bosses he now denounces. It is of no relative importance that he has found virtue in the corporations which favored him and villainy in the corporations which opposed him.

Humanity is fallible. We cannot look for perfection in politicians.

Bryan denounced "Boss" Sullivan as a train robber and "Boss" Murphy as a corruptionist, and then hobnobbed with Sullivan and was photographed with his arm affectionately around Murphy's shoulder.

Wilson is the terror of some corporations, but he is the Lord Protector of the railroads who put him in office. He, too, is opposed to bosses, but not until he has gotten all the bosses have to give.

Roosevelt is no worse than the rest. In fact, he is in some things considerably better.

At any rate, in this instance he is performing a worthy part. He is battling for free speech and free institutions against a powerful and unscrupulous political boss, who is a menace to both.

We should not be misled by revelations of Roosevelt's obvious inconsistencies into assuming that Barnes is on the right side of this controversy and that Roosevelt is in the wrong, or that Barnes is customarily right and that Roosevelt is continually wrong.

On the contrary, Roosevelt is very frequently right and Barnes is habitually and persistently wrong.

Roosevelt generally thinks right, even if he does not always act right. Barnes thinks wrong, and acts wrong BECAUSE he thinks wrong.

Roosevelt is a natural progressive, modified perhaps by self-interest and personal ambition. Barnes is a natural reactionary, aggravated by constant corporation service and association.

Roosevelt is essentially American in mind and heart. Barnes is psychologically a Tory, as much opposed today to American ideas and institutions as the men who opposed American independence and republican institutions in Revolutionary times.

Roosevelt at least believes in popular rights and liberties. Barnes doubts the ability of the people to govern themselves, and does his patriotic best to keep them from doing so.

History has taught Roosevelt the lesson of free government, but the fact that this nation is the greatest in the world because it is the freest in the world means nothing to Barnes.

Barnes is a "boss" exactly as Roosevelt says he is, and bossism is the antithesis of Republicanism, the diametric opposite of Democracy.

It is possible that visionaries like Wilson and Bryan may re-establish the Republican party in power. But if they should do so, reactionaries like Barnes and Root will assuredly and inevitably re-wreck and re-ruin the Republican party and expel it helplessly and hopelessly from power.

Roosevelt in attacking Barnes is laboring in the interest of purer government and freer government. It is the duty of honest and independent newspapers and citizens to support Roosevelt in his fight.

Let us encourage the ex-leader of the ex-Progressive party to progress as far as the principles of the Independence League. He has discovered the iniquity of Barnes. Let us hope that in due time he will also realize the rascality of Root.

We may have had occasion to criticise Roosevelt in the past. We may have occasion to criticise him in the future. But for what he is doing NOW we should commend him NOW.

No One Should Judge a Play Like "The Birth of a Nation" Unless He Has Seen It

The AMERICAN publishes below a letter from Carrie Washington Reed concerning the censorship of moving picture exhibitions.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—I have read your editorial anent the "Birth of a Nation" photo-play and the legislation aimed to suppress it, and while I do not agree with your conclusions, it is pleasing to note your friendly and deserving tribute to the colored race, contained therein, which in substance is a condemnation of the play.

Your defence of the "liberty of the press," however, suggests to me that historic utterance: "O Liberty! Liberty! how many crimes are committed in thy name!"

You admit that the play is not true to history and that it libels the colored race, I glean, when you say "a race can be libeled, but it cannot be really harmed by misrepresenting history. So we ought not to overthrow a principle of liberty, in a vain attempt to prevent a harmless libel." But would you have the 10,000,000 of our colored citizens grossly maligned, for the "liberty of the press"?

Why not invite colored men into your office, as you do white men, to discuss these great issues, so that the world may know their viewpoint? Seventy-five thousand colored citizens of Massachusetts, without a dissenting voice, demand the suppression of this play, a situation almost unprecedented in our history.

None but colored men and women can fully appreciate the cruel injustice of this production, which, its sponsors have admitted, is aimed to embitter the white man against his colored brother.

Young men, women and children, who have no personal knowledge of the reconstruction period and have been unable to secure any accurate, historical facts relating thereto, see the play and are told that it is true; that Boston would not license the pictures were the events there portrayed false. The result is that they believe what they have seen and come away with an intensely bitter feeling against the colored race, which is there pictured only as an ignorant, depraved, lustful people.

Colored men have valiantly fought an uphill battle against tremendous odds since the war and have had to contend against bitter prejudice, even in Boston, and to add to their burden, at this time, the production at the Tremont Theatre with its wicked design is a crime, differing in degree only from that when he was liberated and left without shelter, raiment or food, to work out his salvation in the hostile country of his former masters.

You certainly would place some regulations on picture shows. Would you permit our German citizens to present a photo-play, falsely portraying men and women of French or English extraction, as depraved criminals, especially if it were admitted in advance, that the object was to create prejudice against those nations?

You say "the provisions of the bill would have prohibited 'Uncle Tom's Cabin,' etc." It required no law to suppress that play in the South and it was never cordially received even after being mutilated beyond recognition.

You joined in the protest against the Johnson-Jeffries fight pictures, which merely represented a black man triumphing over a white man in a fair and manly test of physical strength and skill, and when they were suppressed, you said it was a great moral victory. I think you know that the opposition to those pictures was based upon racial grounds, and to be consistent you ought likewise to urge the suppression of this photo-play, which from a moral standpoint is far below the standard of prizefighting.

The Civil War is over and the South ought to be only too glad to forget, rather than come to Boston fifty years after its close, to picture the assassination of Lincoln and glorify the assassin, Booth, with his "sic semper tyrannis." Yours for justice.

CARRIE WASHINGTON REED,
No. 19 Wigglesworth street, Boston.

The AMERICAN does not attempt to justify "The Birth of a Nation" photo-play. Neither does the AMERICAN condemn it. But there is evidence in some of Mrs. Reed's criticisms that she has not seen the play, but has derived her knowledge from hearsay. For instance, she closes her letter with the statement that the play "pictures the assassination of Lincoln and glorifies the assassin, Booth, with his 'sic semper tyrannis.'"

If Mrs. Reed had seen the play she could not have made such a statement. It does not glorify the assassin Booth. It represents his act as a terrible blow to the white people of the South. The mother of the Camerons, the central Southern white figures in the play, calls Lincoln "The Great Heart," and when the news of his assassination is brought to the Cameron home, the old man bows his head and weeps and the young Southern colonel is made to say, "What hope is left for the South now?"

The impression which an intelligent and calm mind receives from this photo-play is one of sympathy for the negroes and of disgust for the Northern whites who went down to use the negroes for their own corrupt and immoral purposes. Among all the figures which stand out in relief from the enormous mass represented in this remarkable play, there are none more attractive than the negro man and woman who were attached to the Cameron household and who risked their lives to protect the old white man.

The individuals who do the vicious things are the white captain, the white politician and the half-white carpet-bagger. The great mass of the colored people are represented to be happy, innocent and easily led. What they did was as children incited by ignoble white men who played upon the wrongs they suffered in slavery.

The AMERICAN suggests that the management of "The Birth of a Nation" invite the colored people of Boston to see this play and to judge it each for himself. Let a day be reserved for this purpose.

Wanted—Facts of the Boston Gas Situation

Governor Walsh has done right to urge the Legislature to require an investigation of the Boston gas situation by the Gas and Electric Light Commission.

The sliding scale plan of automatically regulating the prices and dividends adopted for the Boston Consolidated Gas Company ten years ago was an experiment in this country. The end of the ten-year period provided for in the sliding scale act is about to arrive and we ought to have all the facts which are material to a decision as to the success or failure of this plan and as to the wisdom of continuing it. We ought also to have the expert opinion of the Gas and Electric Light Commission, which has, during the last ten years, won the respect and confidence of the public.

The AMERICAN hopes that the broadest and most thorough inquiry will be provided concerning the FACTS of the situation, for, although the opinions of the commission are extremely valuable, what the Legislature and the public most need in these matters are the FACTS on which they can make up their own minds.

Public Schools Should Teach Good Manners

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

OUR school systems need revolutionizing. The community is taxed heavily to support school institutions. The introduction of the drawing master, the music master, the district nurse, the visiting dentist and doctor, all mean increased taxes for the people. Most of these innovations on the old school system (which consisted of teaching the "Three R's")—reading, writing and "'rithmetic," are of value to the children—the coming generation of men and women.

It is, however, the opinion of many thinking people that the time and money expended on the teaching of art in our public schools might well be reduced to a minimum. Not one child in one hundred possesses sufficient talent in this line to make it worth while to continue the study after school years. The child who does possess such talent would be discovered were not a whole community taxed and the time of an entire school taken a portion of each day, which might well be devoted to something of more universal value.

One of the most important things in the education of any man or woman is good manners. Manners which do not offend in daily deportment. A man may know nothing of art and nothing of music and yet not offend his neighbors, though he live to be a hundred years old. But the man who knows nothing of the niceties of good manners at the table, or deportment in public vehicles, or places of entertainment, is a continual annoyance and irritation to his fellow beings.

To act noisily, to display a tooth pick in public, to use the knife where the fork is intended, to crowd in front of women and children, to talk loud in public, all these habits interfere with the general well being. It is in the early childhood life that right habits should be taught.

Would Work Miracles

It would be of great importance to the world at large were the public schools of America to institute a "good manners department" in the kindergarten, the primary, and intermediate departments of all schools. Ten minutes each day given to instruction by short talks and demonstrations on these subjects would accomplish miracles of good. The right way of manipulation of the knife and fork at the table, the right attitudes, the proper use of the napkin are all matters of much greater importance in the education of the average child than instruction in drawing or in dissection of dead animals.

Our country is a smelting pot of every nationality on earth. Our schools are composed of children from all classes and all climes. Many people come to us whose lives in the old countries have been passed in remote places, far from centres of civilization, where no knowledge is obtainable of the niceties of life. The children are reared by these parents in the same habits which characterized their early environments. A large majority of these children will grow up to be intellectually brilliant men and women, and many of them will occupy prominent places, industrially and politically. It is important that they should be trained in good manners in the small things of life as well as in intellectual development.

Lack of Training

If young children are made to realize that good manners are regarded as a part of education they will use their influence upon their parents.

At any one of our seashore resorts in the Summer, or our Winter resort hotels, one may encounter men and women by the score who have been successful in the battle for worldly wealth, but whose early education lacked training in this special direction of refined manners. Men who tuck their napkins under their chin, men and women who partake of their soup audibly, and who flourish toothpicks at the table, in the corridors and on the verandas, and even men and women who convey food to the mouth by means of the knife, forgetting that the knife is only appropriate for cutting and not for carrying food, are to be met with everywhere in our land.

Many of our early Puritan fathers were very indifferent to these matters as they were opposed to all things ornamental and beautiful in life. They taught only the stern virtues, and principles, and an austere religion. The ornamental, the gracious, the courteous sides of life they considered of no value.

The New England world has changed many of its ideas in modern times, but it needs to change still more, and to carry its modern ideas still farther, by introducing instruction in good manners into our school systems.

It is only the exceptionally well bred little boy who does not rush ahead of older people, thrust women and children aside and force himself into public conveyances in a hurry to obtain a seat. Not one small boy in one thousand ever rises and offers an older person a seat; not more than one in one thousand has been taught to rise when a lady enters a room. These small courtesies mark the well bred man when he is grown and their absence marks the boor.

The world would be a more agreeable place, and men and women more agreeable companions were our public schools to introduce a department for teaching good manners.
